NAVY BLOCKS NAZI TROOP LANDINGS

British Seamen Sow Deadly, Secret Mines In Effort To Cut Off Enemy From Occupation Forces In Norway

By HALGER HANSON

British United Press. Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Bulletin.

STOCKHOLM, April 13—Unconfirmed reports said today that several large British warships were landing troops at Narvik, Norway, under heavy bombardment from German air and land forces. The reports said fighting proceeded all morning with heavy losses on both sides. Norwegian troops were reported supporting the British attack. The Norwegians were said to be hampered by lack of heavy guns and airplanes.

LONDON, April 13.—Constant vigilance by British naval units off the Norwegian coast has made "further landings by German troops in the far north of Norway almost impossible," official quarters said today. The statement was made in comment on an official German news agency report that more German troops had been landed at Narvik.

It was reported, meanwhile, that as part of its attempt to cut off Germany from its forces of occupation in Norway, Britain has used a new, deadly, secret mine. It was intimated that the Allies have a submarine fleet in the Kattegat ready to meet any German attempt to sweep a channel through the mine fields for supplies and reinforcements for its Norwegian forces.

Allied mine fields, laid off the German, Netherlands and Norwegian coasts and in the Skagerrak and the Kattegat, the entrances to the Baltic, now, cover about 60,000 square miles, it was reported.

Naval experts asserted that it "should not be assumed" that German vessels equipped with paravanes or other recognized apparatus to fend off mines would be free from danger. They intimated that British navy mine experts had developed completely new mine types and asserted that they knew no precautions which the Germans could take which would guarantee their ships against destruction if they came into contact with the British mines.

NEW TYPE PLANE

Backing up warships in the drive to sweep German transport and supply ships from the sea were new super-streamlined Fairey Swordfish biplanes, each carrying a single torpedo as powerful as those aboard submarines.

Britain tightened the hold by which it hopes to strangle Germany not only with its new mine fields but by other means.

It was said authoritatively that Danish ships, now classed technically as enemy craft, would be permitted by the allies to ply the seas only under the allied flag. Danish ships are to be seized as prizes, requisitioned, and operated as allied ships. The Danish masters and crews, if they elect, will be permitted to man the ships.

Twenty-nine Danish ships, including nine fishing boats and 20 merchantmen whose tonnage totaled 26,000 already have been seized in British ports, it was made known. Informants said that the allies would pay compensation for all seized ships as soon as the war ended, so that Germany could not profit.

MAN STRUCK, KILLED ON 104 AVENUE

Identity Unknown; Driver Held For Manslaughter Pending Probe

At 1 p.m. Saturday police were still unable to identify the victim. The body is at Andrews funeral chapel, and attendants there described the man as being about 5 feet 4½ inches in height, of slight build, with light brown hair turning grey. They estimated his age at about 55 years. He was wearing a blue coat and blue striped trousers.

An auto accident on dimly-lighted 104 avenue—the city's "Death Trail"—claimed the life of an unidentified man late Friday night, police reported Saturday.

J. J. Currie, of the aviation division of the department of transport, told police that just ten minutes before midnight, while driving west on 104 avenue, just east of the 115 street intersection, he "felt a bump" and when he stopped his auto found that the body of a man was lying just north of the road.

A Star Ambulance was called to the scene and it rushed the unconscious form to the Royal Alexandra Hospital, but doctors there said that life was extinct before the ambulance reached the hospital.

Investigating, Officers J. B. Arial and Ken Murray reported that Currie said he was travelling about 30 miles per hour and just before the accident occurred another car, also proceeding west, had overtaken and passed him. He said that he did not see the man he hit or any other pedestrian although his lights were in the "bright" position.

Police found the man lying six feet north of the pavement and 79 feet east of the 115 street intersection. They found headlight glass scattered along the shoulder of the road. They found the man's hat 33 feet east of where they found the body and 9½ feet north of the pavement. At a point 16 feet north of the body they found a skid mark two feet long.

The right front headlight of Currie's auto was shattered and the fender dented in two places. Police are holding Currie on a charge of manslaughter automatically laid in all such cases.

This is the second fatal traffic accident to occur in the city this year, and the third to occur on "Death Trail," as 104 avenue has been dubbed. There are no sidewalks along the road, with the results that pedestrians customarily walk along the paved road. Besides the three persons who have been killed on the road, several have been injured.

Coroner's juries, inquiring into past fatal accidents, have made recommendations that lighting along the avenue should be increased and improved and sidewalks provided. Police pointed out that the unidentified man whom Currie's auto struck apparently was walking on the right side of the road with the normal stream of traffic instead of on the left side, facing traffic, as the law requires.

Trucks Banned From Highways

CALGARY, April 13.—Truck and bus traffic was halted on the majority of Alberta's main highways today as officials of the provincial department of public works attempted to cope with one of the most serious road situations in recent years, created by a sudden heavy thaw. At noon today, trucks and busses were banned from the main highway north of Calgary to Edmonton, east of Calgary to Medicine Hat and Walsh and all roads leading north from the main east highway.

NETHERLANDS FLOOD AREAS ALONG BORDER

Strong Defence Forces Are Concentrated At Two Points

AMSTERDAM, April 13—The Netherlands last night flooded strategic areas in the Utrecht frontier region and concentrated strong forces at Limburg and Brabant as mysterious German troop movements continued across the border.

Heavy gunfire was heard during the night and an unidentified ship went down near the mouth of the Scheldt river, which cuts through both Dutch and Belgian territory.

A Belgian naval vessel put out to investigate and came across a great oil-slick where unidentifiable wreckage was floating. No bodies were seen in the water and no further details were available.

SOME EASING OF TENSION

Some easing of tension was seen in an announcement that normal Netherland passenger railway schedules will be resumed Sunday. It was said freight schedules may be restored the following day.

At Brussels, foreign minister Paul-Henry Spaak outlined to the cabinet war front developments since the German push on Denmark and Norway began.

Holland's four Nazi deputies were reported to have disappeared. A Socialist deputy pointed out in the chamber that only one had put in a brief appearance during the last few days.

Meadow Winner Of Newbury Cup

NEWBURY, England, April 13.—Sir Abe Bailey's Meadow, Michael Beary up, today won the Newbury Spring cup over one mile, defeating James Rank's King Legend by a neck.

The Duchess of Norfolk's Ticca Gari, a length behind King Legend, was third in the field of 26. Meadow started at 7 to 1 and King Legend and Ticca Gari at 10 to 1.

EDDIE SHORE LIKELY BOSS OF CANADIENS

MONTREAL, April 13.—Possibility that Eddie Shore, veteran hockey star, and Leo Dandurand, Montreal sportsman, would be placed in complete charge of the reorganized Canadiens next season was indicated today by General Manager Tommy Gorman of the Canadian Arena Company, who said the men "would be decided assets to the National Hockey League."

Shore was in Montreal this week and he conferred with Senator Donat Raymond, president of the Canadian Arena Company, which is reorganizing the Habitants. It is understood that if Shore ties up with Canadiens the team may use Springfield Indians of the International-American league as a farm club.

Dandurand's name has been mentioned consistently since the Canadian Arena Company assumed full control of the Canadiens.

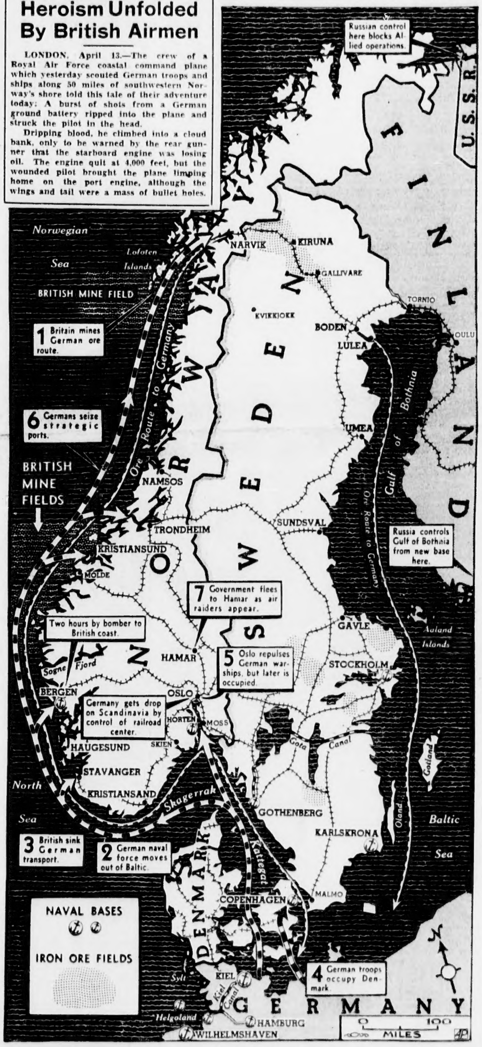
How Britain Planned Halt Nazi Shipments

Heroism Unfolded By British Airmen

LONDON, April 13.—The crew of a Royal Air Force coastal command plane which yesterday scouted German troops and ships along 50 miles of southwestern Norway's shore told this tale of their adventure today: A burst of shots from a German ground battery ripped into the plane and struck the pilot in the head.

Dripping blood, he climbed into a cloud bank, only to be warned by the rear gunner that the starboard engine was losing oil. The engine quit at 4,000 feet, but the wounded pilot brought the plane limping home on the port engine, although the wings and tail were a mass of bullet holes.



NUMBERED tabs show the sequence of events that began when Britain mined Norwegian waters Sunday night. Britain's object was to stop shipments of Swedish iron ore down the Norwegian coast to Germany. Another ore route, via the Gulf of Bothnia, is usually ice-locked until late in May. The events swept to a climax when Germany invaded Denmark and Norway in Tuesday's dawn. Points on Norway's west coast are only two hours away from Britain by bomber. It also gives the Allies a chance to move against Germany from the north. The ports on Norway's west coast, and the ore-shipping town of Lulea, in Sweden, are considered susceptible to Allied attack by sea or air. The Scandinavian countries themselves are no match for an invader. Sweden is the only one capable of resisting any length of time. Her army numbers 625,000 men, including reserves, and her air force 350 planes. Norway's total forces number only 135,000, and she entered the war with only 100 planes. But since some of the craggiest terrain in Europe lies in these two countries, it would be almost impossible to over-run them completely. Denmark, however, which offered no resistance to the Nazi blitzkriegers, is a flat, agricultural land. Her fighting force totals only 100,000. Sweden, too, is the most populous—6,250,000 people as compared with 3,700,000 for Denmark and 2,834,000 for Norway.

Transport, Supply Ships Attacked By British Warplanes

Operations Against Enemy In Norwegian Waters Continue—One Plane Forced Down At Sea, Others Return Safely

By DAN CAMPBELL

British United Press. Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Bulletin.

LONDON, April 13.—The British fleet air arm raided the major Norwegian port of Bergen yesterday, bombing transports and supply ships and blowing up a warehouse containing munitions, the Admiralty announced today. Only one Brtish plane was lost in the raid. It was forced down at sea, the Admiralty said.

This raid on Bergen was separate from attacks by Royal Air Force planes in which eight planes were lost yesterday, according to an air ministry announcement. The Admiralty said that off Bergen the fleet air arm had machine gunned a motor torpedo boat.

Except for the one plane forced down at sea near an island all planes returned despite unfavorable weather, the admiralty said. The two men in the plane which was forced down were seen to leave their ship.

The air ministry's announcement said that in addition to the eight planes lost by the R.A.F. in a day of fighting in Scandinavia yesterday two more were forced down at sea on their way home. Four German fighters were shot down, the ministry said, two more were believed to have been destroyed and others were damaged.

AIRDROME BOMBED

A later announcement by the air ministry said that R.A.F. planes had bombed the airdrome at Stavanger, German-held city on the southwestern Norwegian coast.

The announcement said it was believed that extensive damage was done to a hangar and one aircraft.

It added that the rear gunner of the British plane, although wounded, shot down an enemy fighter plane in flames.

German warships which escaped destruction after having covered the landing of German expeditionary forces in Norway, apparently were attempting to hurry back to their protected home ports while the British harried them from overhead with bomb and gunfire.

The heaviest British plane losses were suffered in attacking German warships in Kristiansand fjord on the Skagerrak, where the ministry said they encountered "strong opposition."

Another bomber formation, flying northward toward Stavanger, battled a large force of German pursuit planes which apparently were assigned to protect the retreating naval vessels.

(DNB, German news agency, said British bombers also raided Narvik, German-held port in the Arctic, but did no damage yesterday.)

NORSE TROOPS HOLD HALDEN ON OSLO FJORD

Flag Still Flies Over Strong Norwegian Fortress Nearby

By RALPH FORTE

British United Press Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Bulletin

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 13.—Norwegian soldiers and volunteers are holding Halden, on Oslo fjord, despite reports of a German troop landing and the Norwegian flag still flies over the strong Norwegian fortress of Fredriskken nearby, it was reported today.

It had been reported that the Germans succeeded in landing a force at Halden, on the eastern side of Oslo fjord near Frederickstad, which has made a long and stubborn stand under terrible airplane bombardment.

It was asserted that the German troops had arrived during the night.

Whether they had landed or not, the Stockholm radio flashed a despatch from the official Swedish telegraph agency that Halden had not been captured and that the Norwegians held also the fortress.

The situation along the 50-mile Oslo fjord which leads to Oslo from the Shagerrak, was extremely uncertain. It had been reported conflictingly that allied ships were blocking the entrance; that another German fleet had reached Oslo yesterday, including a battleship and a number of destroyers and other warships, to be met by ambulances, that the German troops had arrived at Halden.

It was believed that the Holden troops, if landed, might have been sent from Germany in special transport planes.

It was at least apparent that the Germans held the fjord as far down from Oslo as Moss, a reach of some 30 miles, but that the Norwegians were in strong force not far inland and held the fjord east coast to the south.

It was reported that railroad communication had been restored by the Germans between Trondheim, on the Norwegian west coast, and the Swedish frontier, a distance of 55 miles.

War Briefs

LONDON, April 13.—The Exchange Telegraph today quoted the Swedish radio as reporting that the Norwegians had blown up a bridge at Askim, south of Oslo, while German troops were crossing it, killing a great number.

LONDON, April 13. — Three German ships, captured by the British navy off the Norwegian coast, were brought into northern ports today manned by British prize crews. The ships were all trawlers.

British United Press

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, April 13.—Danish state police today banned all public meetings, indoors and outdoors, throughout the country, after citizens were reported to have "molested" Danish soldiers for failing to do their duty against the German invaders.

LONDON, April 13—The Admiralty today announced 18 casualties aboard the destroyer Ghurka, sunk last Tuesday by German bombers off the Norwegian coast. The list included five officers missing, believed killed; one rating killed and nine missing, believed killed; three wounded.

BERLIN, April 13—Germany today took over Norwegian ships in Norwegian harbors occupied by German forces and German crews were placed aboard the vessels, the German News Agency announced.

Airfields Are Packed With Automobiles To Block Planes Landing

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

STOCKHOLM, April 13.—Sweden made urgent preparations today to fight, if necessary, in defence of her neutrality while German troops and warplanes strengthened their hold on Norway.

Along the southern Swedish coast, airfields were packed with parked taxicabs and other automobiles to prevent airplanes from landing.

Throughout the country, bomb shelters hastily are being constructed and vehicles are being converted for burning charcoal in order to save gasoline.

The "man-in-the-street," having heard Premier Perr Albin Hansson's broadcast warning last night of Sweden's precarious position, apparently is resolved to back up his declaration that the country will maintain its neutrality, no matter at what sacrifice.

WOULD HAVE TO REFUSE

Hansson declared there had been no demand on Sweden for use of her territory "by any belligerent nation" but that "if such a demand should ever be made, Sweden would have to refuse to comply with it."

In Norway, meanwhile, a German force broke through Norwegian defences between Moss, 35 miles south of Oslo, and Holen, 10 miles closer to the capital. Since the Germans were advancing toward Oslo they were presumed to be newly-landed troops pushed up the shore of Oslo fjord to join the invaders' expeditionary army.

Advices reaching here said the German advance caught the Norwegians by surprise and they had no time to meet it.

Defence troops, holding positions along the narrow Fjord, had established a semi-circular line from Moss to Holen, east of Mysen, northward, east of the River Glommen and Lake Oyeren to [illegible], thence southward to Tyri Fjord and Vikesund, which is about 30 miles west of Oslo.

BOLSTER RING

Fortifications were being thrown up in the valleys to the northwest to bolster the ring.

The German advance from Moss was said to have been accomplished in commandeered busses and automobiles and to have been impeded, at least briefly, when a bridge was dynamited as the first bus crossed a stream.

Refugees from the Holen region reached Stockholm by automobile today and said they had been ordered by Norwegian police to speed for the Swedish frontier to keep their motorcade from falling into the hands of the advancing Germans.

GERMANS HARASSED

The Germans, however, were reported harassed within Oslo when Norwegians blew up a large dam at nearby Solbergfoss and cut off the city's electricity.

Norwegian sources said telephone and telegraph lines linking Oslo and Berlin also had been put out of commission.

The Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet said German warplanes still were pursuing King Haakon and Crown Prince Olav from hiding place to hiding place. Wherever they stop, it said, air alarms soon follow.

CLOSE TO BORDER

The present whereabouts of the 68-year-old monarch was not disclosed but the newspaper said he had been forced close to the Norwegian-Swedish border.

The newspaper's correspondent said the King told him in a highway meeting: "I have not been out of my boots and I have hardly had a wink" since leaving Oslo Tuesday.

He reported, however, that King Haakon still was in good spirits and determined to stay in his country "as long as one inch remains Norwegian."

One of the ministers accompanying the King told of a close escape yesterday when, he said, four German bombs exploded near where the monarch had thrown himself into the snow. The minister said the German planes, apparently skimming the treetops, aimed machine-gun fire so close they seemed to have recognized the King.

Elsewhere there were no reports of changes in the Norwegian situation with the Germans admittedly holding the ports of Kristiansand, Stavanger, Bergen and Narvik. The situation at Trondheim remained obscured by military secrecy.

An unconfirmed report to the newspaper Dagens Nyheter said that all German warships at Narvik, including four destroyers, had been sunk by Norwegian forces.

SEARCH FRUITLESS

A search by Norwegians for five German warships reported off Trondheim was said to have been fruitless but two British destroyers were seen at Namsos, to the north.

According to the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet, British fighting strength in that area also included two British battleships, four cruisers and two other destroyers together with large numbers of aircraft.

R.A.F. PLANE STRIKES AT NAZI SHIP

LONDON, April 13 — A Royal Air Force plane damaged a German Dornier flying boat and raked a German destroyer with hundreds of rounds of machine-gun fire in a battle in the North Sea, it was announced today.

Diving through a snowstorm, the pilot of a coastal command bomber opened fire at 1,500 feet and swept the decks of the destroyer until he was only 500 feet above her.

The plane attacked the flying boat immediately afterward and reported it lost height with both engines afire and with only a bare chance of reaching land.

One shell pierced the British plane's gasoline tank.

"Fuel was escaping rapidly, and with half the North Sea to cross they turned westward to begin a race against the leaking tank," the authorized account said.

"With accurate navigation and careful nursing of the petrol consumption, the aircraft returned safely."

SHELL PLANS ARE SENT TO WAR OFFICE

Plans for new high-explosive shells have been submitted by Steve Pauly, 8324 [illegible] avenue, to the department of national defence, which has informed Mr. Pauly that his plans have been taken under advisement.

Mr. Pauly's inventions include a shell which has a range of 170 miles and which explodes over its object, and explosive shell with 12 [illegible] which explodes 12 times [illegible] and has a range of 100 miles, fire and poison shells, six of which striking in an area of one square mile [illegible] burn and destroy everything in that area, according to Mr. Pauly.

The inventor was an armament worker in Hungary during the last Great War.

Reaching a new peak in auto camp accommodation, construction of 15 new cottages, on the plan shown above, will commence shortly in the Edmonton Auto Camp at 104 street, on the Calgary Highway. The cottages will each have two bedrooms, a living room, kitchenette and bathroom, and will be completely furnished with furniture, refrigerators, radios, linens and dishes. Improvements and alterations in the existing cottages, grounds, and the administration building will be made under the improvement plan.

SHIPMENTS TO REICH HALTED BY RUMANIANS

Loading Of Freight Cars, Danube Oil Barges Now Stopped

By ROBERT ST. JOHN
Associated Press Staff Writer

BUCHAREST, April 13.—Rumania last night suspended the loading of freight cars for Germany at the same time it became known the loading of Danube oil barges had been stopped for several days.

Foreign diplomats expressed fear the move may speed a crisis in economic relations between Rumania and the Reich as they felt the action might amount to a virtual embargo on exports to Germany.

Suspension of freight car loadings, it was learned, followed presentation by Germany to Rumania of a long list of commodities on which the Reich is placing what amounts to an embargo against shipment to Rumania.

The Rumanian general staff met with Premier Georges Tatarescu last night. The cabinet's economic council, composed of the ministers of finance, domestic and foreign trade, will prepare a list of Rumanian raw materials which will be embargoed as vital for the country's own use.

In informed quarters, it was said the government is expecting to receive stiff demands from Germany within the next few days.

Germany is expected to demand formally that Rumania demobilize in order to speed up work in factories and fields for Germany.

It is believed also in informed circles that Germany will demand that Rumania, as part of the Reich's lebensraum (living space), direct her exports almost wholly to the Nazis, to the point of cutting her trade with the Allies.

Sources close to the government say there now is little doubt such demands will be turned down by King Carol and his government.

Dr. Karl Clodius, head of the German trade commission, presented to Rumanian officials a list of articles Germany will not send to Rumania in the future.

One item was metallurgical coke, vital to Rumania's industry. This country normally obtains 30,000 tons annually from Germany and has asked 80,000 for the future.

The official explanation given for suspending oil barge loadings is that high water at Giurgiu made it impossible for the barges to connect with the loading racks.

German trade quarters branded the explanation as a "pretext."

ALBERTA MOTOR ASSOCIATION ROAD REPORTS

Safety Slogan: Use of the horn does not give the right of way.

Saturday's road report: Edmonton to Calgary fair to good, rough in places. All other main highways are deeply rutted and rough with some bad holes. The Peace River road is muddy.

A meeting of the property committee of the Edmonton school board will be held at the Civic block Tuesday evening, April 16, at 8 o'clock.

Junior Chamber Beautification Contest Planned

Designed to attract tourist traffic to Edmonton and promoting civic beautification, the Edmonton Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a photographic contest for pictures of city scenes, it is announced by William Mackay, chairman of the beautification committee. Promotion of the contest will be started within the next week and it will continue for 13 weeks It is planned to exhibit the best pictures.

Edward Bryant, Robert Chapman and Hugh Chapman have been added to the beautification campaign committee.

$60,000 Construction Program Now Proposed At City Tourist Camp

Further impetus will be given to the already large tourist traffic in Edmonton, with the construction of 15 new modern cottages and improvements to be made in the older buildings and grounds of the Edmonton auto camp on the South Side at 104 street on the Calgary Trail, it was reported Saturday by the Edmonton branch of the Alberta Motor Association.

The building program with an expenditure of about $60,000, will commence in the near future. A bond will be issued for $70,000, about $10,000 of which will be used to clear way the old bonds still in the hands of bondholders, and the balance will be used to place the Edmonton Auto Camp among the leading tourist camps in the Dominion.

Fifteen modern cottages, finished in stucco, are the major items on the building program. Each of the cottages will contain two bedrooms, a living room, bathroom, kitchenette, and they will be completely furnished, with furniture, refrigerators, radios, linens and dishes.

GARAGE FACILITIES

The cottages to be built will provide year-round accommodation for tourists. There will also be a six-car garage.

Buildings at present in the auto camp site, which include 30 cottages and an administration office, will be renovated and enlarged and space provided for trailers and tents.

History of the Edmonton Auto Camp goes back to 1926, when a camp consisting of one wash-room and an open kitchen was constructed by members of the Edmonton Auto Club and the South Side Business Men's Association. The interested men hung their coats on near-by poplar trees and set to work to build the camp with materials provided by themselves and other enthusiasts.

Later, a bond issue was floated to allow for enlargement of the camp and between the years 1931 and 1937 some $15,000 was spent in improvements. From time to time additional cottages were built and the ground enlarged and improved, until at the present time the camp is rated as one of the best in the Dominion, according to tourists.

SPENT MILLION

During the 1939 season the old camp accommodated 11,700 persons, and it has been estimated that the visitors to Edmonton spent close to $1,000,000 in the city.

The camp is owned and operated by the Edmonton Auto and Good Roads Association, formerly the Edmonton Auto Club, which has been kept in existence solely for the purpose of maintaining the camp for the benefit of tourists to the city.

Bonds previously issued by the association and now held by investors may be exchanged for the current issue, or may be redeemed.

Government May Take Over Sales Of Canada Wheat

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, April 13.—Two of Canada's good wheat customers, Norway and Denmark, are out of the market for the present because of Nazi war operations and an official spokesman yesterday said a situation might develop quickly that would cause the government to take over the entire wheat marketing of the Dominion.

The cabinet has not discussed wheat marketing since the election but the government, it was said, would be prepared to co-operate with Great Britain if the cereals board of the British food ministry became convinced the situation could be better handled by government control of wheat markets in Canada.

Chief buyer in the Winnipeg grain pit is the British cereals board headed by James Rank. However, there have been other buyers. In the seven months, August to February, Norway bought 5,149,030 bushels in the Winnipeg market; Sweden 3,637,693; Denmark 2,218,957; Holland 9,103,515; Belgium 5,552,479.

LOST AS MARKETS

Now, since Germany has taken over Denmark and invaded Norway those countries are lost to Canada as wheat export markets.

Also, the spokesman said, it was difficult to see how, with war operations being conducted in Scandinavia, Sweden could import much Canadian wheat. Uncertainty also hangs over Holland and Belgium.

The United States has plenty of wheat of its own and other wheat importing countries have not been coming into the Canadian market to any extent.

The bulk of Canada's wheat in storage, according to latest figures, 310,995,452 bushels, already is held by the Canadian Wheat Board, a government organization. The board bought the wheat at 70 cents a bushel, basis No. 1 Northern at Fort William. The board issued participating certificates to the growers and will pay on these an additional rate per bushel when the wheat of the present crop is all sold and the profits are figured out.

LIMIT ON FARMERS

However, the board refused to take more than 5,000 bushels from any one owner and the growers who had more than 5,000 sold the balance to one of the 37 pools which are buying wheat on the prairies or to private buyers.

Some farmers held their wheat and will sell it to private firms getting the full market value. The cash price yesterday was 89⅛c for No. 1 Northern.

If it reaches the point where Great Britain is the only important buyer, many here feel there would have to be only one seller and that would be the wheat board.

If the government does take over the wheat marketing, it was learned yesterday, the government is likely to follow the course taken in the bacon control and by the cereals board in the United Kingdom. The private exporting firms and pools would continue to supply their customers in the United Kingdom and would be supplied wheat by the wheat board, being allowed a fixed commission for their services. This would not interfere with the old established trade connections.

In the meantime developments may make it necessary for Great Britain and Canada to get together and decide on a fixed price or a scale of prices extending over the succeeding 12 months.

DANISH SHIPS CAN ONLY FLY ALLIED FLAGS

Vessels Now Technically "Of Enemy Character" In British View

LONDON, April 13—An authoritative British source said last night that Danish ships now are technically "of enemy character" and that if they are to continue in service "they may do so only under an Allied flag."

This source said Danish ships would be seized formally as war prizes after which they would be requisitioned and used for the benefit of the Allies.

Masters and crews would be "welcomed" and invited to serve under the British or French flag if they wished to do so. They would not be treated as enemies.

Compensation to the owners would be arranged "in due course" but on terms that would prevent any benefit passing to Germany during the war.

NEW YORK, April 13. — The Danish consulate yesterday said orders had gone out to all of the 705 ships of that nation's registry now on the high seas to "go to neutral ports, or if you are there stay there."

Confirmation of the order followed persistent reports that the Allies were preparing to seize all Danish ships under the theory that Denmark lost her neutrality when she permitted Germany to take over the country.

Vice Consul A. Tscherning said British officials had suggested that Danish ships "proceed as fast as possible to British ports."

The British suggestion has not been transmitted to Danish ships up to this time, he said.

PREMIER KING LEAVES FRIDAY FOR VACATION

Prime Minister Expects To Be Away For About Two Weeks

OTTAWA, April 13.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King left Ottawa late yesterday on a long-promised holiday in Virginia. He is expected to be absent about two weeks unless some development necessitates an earlier return.

Mr. King will stop at Washington on his way back from Virginia resort where he will spend the next week, and is expected to call on President Roosevelt and Cordell Hull, secretary of state, both old personal friends. He will also call on the British ambassador, Lord Lothian, and Loring Christie, Canadian minister.

IN FINE SPIRITS

Although he has been engaged long hours every day on the preparation and prosecution of Canada's war effort since last September, and just passed through the trying experience of a general election, the Prime Minister seemed well and in fine spirits when he said goodbye to associates Friday afternoon.

"I thought this day would never come," he said, referring to the several times in the past year he had had to postpone plans for a brief holiday away from the immediate cares of office.

"I am hoping to find some sunshine and summer-like weather in Virginia," Mr. King said. He spent a holiday there several years ago.

The Prime Minister reiterated a statement he made at a press conference Thursday, that he would give no interviews during his holiday trip. His calls in Washington will be entirely personal but will inevitably bring discussions of outstanding questions of mutual interest to the two countries.

MAY DISCUSS SEAWAY

Mr. King is expected to be in Washington early in the week of April 22, and will probably spend several days there.

While admitting that if he talked with President Roosevelt in Washington it was quite possible the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes power and seaways project might be included in conversations, Mr. King said: "I am not going to Washington with the view or intention of discussing the seaways."

NEW YORK, April 13.—Police Warrant Officer Lawrence Gorman, reversing the roles, asked census-taker Raymond Glespen a pertinent question, and as a result Glespen found himself in jail today.

Glespen had taken all the required information from Gorman and after a pleasant interview, the officer asked him his name.

"Well, I'm happy to see you in my home," the officer remarked after his caller had identified himself. "I have a warrant for you charging non-support of your wife."

ALL BRITISH NEWSPAPERS CUTTING SIZE

Nazi Invasion Of Norway Cuts Off Supplies Of Newsprint

LONDON, April 13.—Invasion of Norway, cutting off Britain's newsprint supplies, will cause a decrease Monday in the size of newspapers, already reduced since war began, and will boost newsprint prices which now are nearly double those prevailing before the war.

The News Chronicle, the only morning paper to comment on the situation, announced that it will, in common with other papers be reduced to 10 pages, with a further reduction in the near future. The Times and the Daily Telegraph have been running to nearly 14 pages and other London papers to 12.

Newsprint, which was £11, five shillings a ton before the war (about $55 at pre-war rate of the pound) soon jumped to £17, followed on April 1 by the new price of £21, 10 shillings (about $95.50) a ton. The paper controller has ordered a further boost in the price effective Monday, but what that will be was not indicated.

The News Chronicle said some pulp would continue to be shipped from Canada and Newfoundland but added that shipping priority must be given to food and munitions.

CITY APPEALS JUDGMENT IN DUXBURY CASE

CALGARY, April 13—The city of Calgary will appeal the judgment of Hon. Mr. Justice A. F. Ewing in the Duxbury case, L. H. Fenerty, corporation counsel, stated yesterday. The city will appeal the amount of the judgment only.

Friday morning the firm of Calgary doctors also found responsible in part, of Mrs. Alice Duxbury's death in the General hospital filed notice of appeal against both verdict and judgment.

Following a jury verdict holding both the city and the physicians responsible for Mrs. Duxbury's death from nitrous oxide poisoning in the Calgary hospital last year, Mr. Justice Ewing awarded $15,000 damages to Miss Charlotte Duxbury daughter of the deceased. Mrs. Duxbury died in February, 1939.

According to the judgment the city was held responsible to the extent of 62 per cent of the damages, and the doctors 35 per cent. Damages against the city were $9,750 and against the doctors $5,250.

C.A.S.F. Officers Change To Light Service Dress During Summer Months

OTTAWA, April 13. — Officers of the Canadian Active Service Force will change from heavy service uniforms to smart and cool khaki drill when the hot weather rolls around, the national defence department announced today. District officers commanding will set the date when summer kit may be worn.

Pattern of the lightweight summer uniforms will be the same as service dress, and the summer kit may be worn except on training parades, when officers will wear sun helmets, khaki cotton shirts with short sleeves of the same pattern as those issued to other ranks, khaki drill shorts and puttees and ankle boots.

Officers, however, need not purchase the khaki drill summer jackets and long drill trousers, but may wear service dress or battle dress through the summer. They are obliged, however, to wear the shirt, shorts, sun helmets, puttees and boots on training parades.

Summer headgear, apart from training parades, will give officers the option of service dress cap, field service cap, khaki Wolseley helmet or white Wolseley helmet with khaki rover. No cap badges will be worn on helmets. Highland and Scottish regiments may continue to wear the tam o'shanter and tank units their berets if desired. No gloves will be worn.

Officers of non-mechanized cavalry units may wear khaki drill or cord breeches with field boots or leggings and ankle boots. They may wear long trousers with shoes or ankle boots when walking out or on office duty. Officers of other units may also wear breeches instead of trousers except for training parades when troops are wearing shorts.

LaFleche Visits Europe Zones As Military Attache

OTTAWA, April 13—A scarred veteran of the first Great War, Major General Leo R. LaFleche is one of the first Canadians to obtain access to the fighting area on the French frontier in this war.

General LaFleche recently took up his duties as military attache at the Canadian legation in Paris. That position gives him the responsibility of reporting to the Canadian government through the legation on all matters relating to the war and military affairs.

His duties may take him to French General headquarters, to British general headquarters or into the Maginot line.

The Acid Test

Edmonton's city council a while ago invited Canadian holders of city bonds to accept payment of the interest due them in Canadian funds at par—foregoing their right to demand payment in United States money and to thus gouge the city taxpayers to the tune of the 12 per cent premium collectable on Canadian money in New York.

Council now learns that one out of six of the bond-holders who have presented their coupons for payment accepted the proposal and were paid dollar for dollar in Canadian funds. Council is apparently unable to secure a list of these bondholders. That is unfortunate, for they deserve honorable recognition for having refused to play Shylock in a time of national emergency.

Of the others, those who have obligations falling due in the United States cannot be blamed for demanding payment there. Those who have not such obligations but insisted that the city pay the penalty were within their legal right in so doing, but that is the best that can be said for them. They are profiteers, and rightly so described by one member of council. There is satisfaction in knowing that, through the operations of the exchange control board, they can get no more than 4½ per cent of the 12 per cent premium the city has to pay.

If any city council ever again attempts to sell city bonds payable anywhere but in Canada, or in any other than Canadian money, the taxpayers should petition it to resign — and see that it does.

One Year Later

Just about a year ago Germany's Fuehrer made a pact with Denmark, by which each country pledged itself to not attack the other or make war against it. No cynic surely ever chose a more convincing occasion to proclaim the worthlessness of his word than when Herr Hitler celebrated the first anniversary of that solemn pact by sending his troops into the country to which he had given his promise, deposing its Government in effect if not in name, and making himself law-giver and dictator to its people.

He cannot offer even the poor excuse that he did not make "war" because the occupation was accomplished without fighting; for there was fighting. A handful of Danish troops, misunderstanding orders, offered resistance and were suppressed by force. That skirmish, of no other possible importance or outcome, leaves Hitler without even a play upon words with which to cloak his treachery.

Had almost any other man done this, the world would stand aghast at the spectacle of the ruler of a great people displaying himself to the contempt of mankind as a pledge-breaker. But from this man the world has come to expect nothing better. If denunciations do not come from every quarter it is because he has taught men everywhere that this is just the sort of thing he must be expected to do.

The Hitler word stands always at par. The latest incident in no way affects its value. For its par value is zero.

The Neutrals at the Cross-Roads

The Governments of the sadly diminished number of small countries in Europe which still retain their independence should mark, learn and inwardly digest one observation made by Mr. Churchill in telling the British parliament why chaos now reigns in what a week ago was the independent and peaceful Kingdom of Norway. He said: "If the Norwegian Government had not been so very strict and severe in enforcing her neutrality against us, it would have been very easy to give them more timely and more support than is now possible".

Because Norway took an attitude of more than benevolent neutrality toward Germany, the Allies watched "week after week (German) ships passing down the (Norwegian corridor carrying iron ore to make shells which will strike down the young men of France and Britain in the campaign of 1941." And for thus courting favor with him the Fuehrer rewarded Norway by hurling sea, air and landing forces against it in a treacherous attempt to do to it what he had done to Poland.

Had Norway not held the Allies "at arms-length," it could not have been invaded. To put an end to the smuggling of ore through its territorial waters to Germany, the Allies must have thrown a protective screen of warships along the Norwegian coast that would have made the invasion impossible. Its Government would still be located at Oslo, its people would be going about their usual occupations as they were one short week ago, its future would be free of menace.

Norway trusted Hitler—and has been paid in Nazi coinage. Even for the chance its people now have to fight for their national existence they are indebted to the Allies whom they treated with cold official aloofness.

Every other weak nation within reach of Nazi arms is now facing the same choice Norway had ten days ago. Not one of them has any reason to expect more justice or mercy than was shown to it. The bombs which vengeful Nazi airmen have been raining on open towns in Norway are warnings to these countries that they had better throw in their lots with the democracies while Allied aid can be given to them "more timely" and more effectively than will be possible when Nazi armies have over-run them. These countries have still their independence to protect. Norway has only its independence to regain.

Mussolini's newspaper stooges are appalled at the wickedness of the Allies in laying mine fields in the territorial waters of Norway. But not apparently interested in the sinking of Italian and other neutral ships without warning and the drowning of hundreds of sailors, that being a legitimate and approved method of warfare when employed by the other end of the axis.

It is surmised at London that Italy and Japan will not like the plans by which the Allies propose to stop neutral countries smuggling outside supplies into Germany. The measure of their dislike will establish the measure of their guilt. Japan has already convicted itself by protesting against a blockade of the Russian port of Vladivostok.

Nazi airmen were reported Friday to have started bombing open towns and villages in Norway. This as a matter of course. The only wonder is they did not start the baby-killing sooner, the reason probably being that they were too busy straffing military targets. Norway being within easy flying distance from occupied Danish territory, the air force will no doubt be employed freely in this safe and seemingly congenial task of killing civilians, as in Poland. This sort of butchery is part of what Hitler calls "total war".

The Passing Show

By MAX FREEDMAN

Mr. Winston Churchill, alone among the leaders who bore the fury of the Great War, still is in a position of supreme trust and acknowledged power. He has not been broken by the press of events which were strong enough to crush men whose words once swayed the fate of empires, and this is at once a tribute to his genius and proof of his indispensable place in British politics. Long before any of the other key figures of this war had emerged as dominating personalities, he already had woven the web of destiny in a grand design.

THE GRAND MAN IS AT WORK

In 1914 he earned the gratitude of the Empire by his mobilization of the British fleet. That year Mussolini was a querulous journalist, with the pomp of the dictator not even suggested in his face. Hitler was serving in the German army as an obscure corporal. Mr. Roosevelt was the protege of Woodrow Wilson and still learning to take his first steps in national affairs. Mr. Chamberlain was to be summoned during the war by Lloyd George to special ministerial duties which he would renounce after a brief and rather distasteful experience of serving under the dynamic war premier.

Yet Mr. Churchill, upon whom fortune poured so many gifts, whose buoyant charm and magnetic eloquence are now such precious assets of Empire, has a vein of dark melancholy at the base of his happy outlook.

"When I survey the scene of my past life as a whole," he once confessed, "I have no doubt I do not wish to live it over again. Happy, vivid, and full of interest as it has been, I do not seek to tread again the toilsome and dangerous path. Not even an opportunity of making a different set of mistakes and experiencing a different series of adventures and successes would lure me. How can I tell that the good fortune which has up to the present attended me with fair constancy would not be lacking at some critical moment in another chain of causation?"

He has good reason to feel this way, for he would not be alive today and first sea lord if luck had not adopted him years ago as a favorite child of good fortune. By all logic, as he himself admits, he should have been killed in the Boer war on November 15, 1899. That day the Boers had derailed the armored car in which he had been riding as a war correspondent and he took off his heavy Mauser pistol which kept hampering his movements in the fighting which ensued. Had he not done this, he says he would have been hit by a bullet which missed him by inches and would likely have died of enteric fever in the hospital at Ladysmith.

WHEN LUCK IS YOURS

As if that were not enough, he had another race with death that same battle. A mounted burgher, twenty yards away, summoned Churchill to surrender. Had he taken to his heels, he would have been shot. Had he had his pistol with him, the Boer would have been killed. In either case, the history of the world would be different. For the burgher was Botha, who later became prime minister of South Africa and succeeded in expunging the memories of the war in a peace of justice and reconciliation.

To this day Churchill believes that if he had met a hot-headed enemy, while he himself was disarmed, instead of the gallant Botha, he would have perished in South Africa.

Thanks to his devotion to smoking, Mr. Churchill turned back to retrieve a matchbox he had left behind in his dug-out in Flanders, and thus escaped being hit by a shell which pitched where he had been standing a few moments before. Every soldier can tell a similar tale, but this incident burned so vividly into his mind, that he has made it a theme for one of his essays. Then there was his sudden participation in the defence of Antwerp when, attracted by the heroism displayed, he pitched in and took a hand in the fighting. In fact, he offered to resign as First Lord of the Admiralty in order to see the battle through to its bitter finish, but his reckless offer was not accepted. Had it been, Mr. Churchill says, he would likely have been swept into disgrace by what later took place in that sector of the war.

TRIFLES ARE OFT IMPORTANT

But don't worry. Mr. Churchill has no intentions of repeating that error or of taking part personally in the tense battles in the North Sea. "Those who are charged with the direction of supreme affairs must sit on the mountain-tops of control; they must never descend into the valleys of direct physical and personal action," he has declared.

It is only fitting that it should fall to Mr. Churchill's lot to direct British war strategy against the Nazi regime. He saw the coming storm when others basked in the serene conviction that fair weather would never end. No other British statesman knows as much about German mentality or the ruthless dogmas of the Nazi despotism. With an unerring instinct, the Nazi leaders have singled out Churchill as their supreme foe. Though there have been many accidents in his life, Churchill is not where he is today by any accident or caprice of fate. He has been charged with the sombre task of wielding the thunderbolts of war because by common consent he, and he alone, is the right man for the job.

THE RIGHT MAN FOR THE JOB

THE SHIP THAT MISSED ITS CHANCE

Greatest of all the recorded disasters of the sea was the sinking of the Titanic in 1912. Largest, fastest and most sumptuous of all ships, the Titanic was making her maiden voyage, her passenger list heavily sprinkled with notable names. Disregarding repeated warnings of iceburgs, intent on making a record run, the pride of the seas was gashed lengthwise by a berg and sank in a smooth sea, with only 711 survivors out of a total of 2,224 persons aboard.

Nearby, almost in sight of the Titanic, rode the California. But at the hour of disaster her radio operator was asleep. She might easily have rescued everybody aboard the sinking vessel, had she not been blind and deaf to a neighbor's need. Stern condemnation of the California went into the reports of the official investigations, and into history.

It is an inescapable law of life that we are responsible not only for the evil we do, but also for the good we fail to do. With insistent ominous the words of Jesus ring ever in our ears—"Watch."

Forgive us, our Father, for all the opportunities we have missed. Our eyes and ears have been closed in slumberous indifference and complacency when our neighbor's cry for help has gone unheeded. Help us ever to watch. Amen.

Read Matthew 26:36-46.

Dominion Fighters' Share Vital

The world has seen something in these last weeks of the capacity of Dominion fighters by sea and air. It is going to see yet more impressively what the new world can do to redress the balance of the old. Particularly vital will the Empire's contribution be to that arm which must conclusively shatter the dream of a gangster's paradise—that supremacy in air-power which will bring the war to a conclusion will be greatly accelerated by the great Canadian training scheme which is now ready to be put into operation. Its magnitude is a welcome proof that both the Imperial Government and the Dominion Government are fully alive to the resistance to be met with and to the degree of strength necessary to overcome it.—The Observer (London).

Liberal Opinion and Alberta

The five-year period of denunciation may have consolidated the opposition to Aberhart but it also consolidated his support. And the getting together of the Liberals and Conservatives under the guise of Independents was not sufficient to overcome the Social Credit forces.

It appears that the combining of opposition reached just about its maximum strength. Opposing parties can hardly hope for more in that direction. Consequently it should be evident now that more than political action is necessary to overcome the revolt in Alberta.

The combined Independents did not offer anything in the way of a program that would afford relief for the economic conditions which caused the revolt. Their platform merely aimed at getting back to the position and condition prior to Aberhart's election five years ago, a position and condition which caused the revolt.

However, the election has resulted in a better balance in the legislature, a balance more nearly proportionate to the attitude of the electors. At least Alberta has returned to a well-balanced two-party Assembly which should tend toward good government.

It may be that the Independents will not be able to agree among themselves in opposition. They are a combination of Liberals and Conservatives. There is a difference of political philosophy that cannot be smothered and it is desirable that it should not be permanently smothered.—Saskatoon Star-Phoenix.

Savings or Inflation

The compulsory feature of J. M. Keynes' plan for the saving of part of the workers' earnings to be paid to them after the war, is questioned by some, including Sir Josiah Stamp, who say that compulsory powers should not be used until it is considered whether the same object can be gained in a voluntary way.

But the importance of saving to the war economy is widely recognized. It would cut down the use of consumer goods and prevent rising wages and rising prices. The savings would also make available to the Government a large amount of money to finance the war. And they would help to sustain the workers after the war, and industry, also, through the purchasing power of the workers.

The question is whether voluntary saving, say through the purchase of saving certificates, could be secured on a sufficiently wide scale by impressing on the people the harm that inflation would do to them by raising prices and lowering their purchasing power, and impressing on them also the patriotic service which they would be rendering by lending all they are able to the Government to help win the war.

And this is not a matter only for Great Britain. The danger of inflation is likely to arise in Canada in time, and there may be the same need, before the war is over, of discouraging expenditure, not only on luxuries, but on consumer goods in general for the dual purpose of keeping prices down and of making more money available to our Government for the prosecution of the war.—Winnipeg Free Press.

On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS

It is not often that a man is buried on the same day of the month as his birthday. Yet that was the record of the great Irish-Canadian patriot, the Hon. Thomas D'Arcy McGee. Born April 13, 1825, he was buried April 13, 1868. His life fell into three periods: in Ireland, 1825-47; in the United States, 1847-57; and in Canada, 1857-68. While only a quarter of his short life was spent in Canada, it was to her that he gave his fullest and most abiding service. He founded The New Era at Montreal in 1857. A year later he was elected to the assembly for Montreal, first as a Reformer, and then as a Conservative, working with John A. Macdonald.

D'Arcy McGee was, indeed, a Father of Confederation. If George Cartier brought French Canada into the Dominion, and Tupper the Maritime provinces, it is equally true that McGee secured the support of the Irish element. When the first dominion cabinet was formed, everyone expected that McGee would be a member, but he stood aside to permit of the representation of other political and racial groups. He had definitely made up his mind to retire from public life, when on the night of April 6, 1868, the bullet of a Fenian assassin put an end to all his plans.

His funeral on this date in 1868 was an occasion for national mourning. The young Dominion which he had aided in creating wept at his bier and made him forever one of the greatest figures in Irish-Canadian life. Ever determined to defend the rights of his own people, the Irish Catholics, D'Arcy McGee was also always ready to defend the rights of minorities, an apostle of national unity through conciliation.

"Now I know why Mom tells me to put my hand over my mouth when I yawn."

Your Health – By Dr. Frank McCoy

Too many people expect to find the years between 45 and 55 unpleasant. Women especially expect poor health and discomfort at this time. Yet it is very true that women who have refused to accept poor health and who have made an effort to improve the general health during these years, have found they are able to keep strong and attractive in every way. Both husbands and wives are afraid that their married life will not be as happy at this time as before—yet such fears are needless.

It is entirely natural that certain changes occur in the functioning of the body during the menopause stage, but there should be no undue physical or mental discomfort. "Hot flashes" possibly cause the most discomfort of any one symptom. Such flashes are annoying and uncomfortable. Eventually they tend to disappear when the change is over. Proper diet, plenty of rest, outdoor exercise and avoidance of strain will help to minimize the discomfort from hot flashes. When they prove extremely disturbing, a physician's advice as to an endocrine preparation to be used, will often solve the problem.

Some of the symptoms complained of by women experiencing the change are: Rapid heart, spots before the eyes, faintness, depression and dizziness. Excessive sweating and headache may also be noted.

Men go through a similar change in many instances, but this usually comes on at a later period than is the case with women.

If you are approaching this time of life, make up your mind that you are going to make the change a real change for the better. Change your wrong eating habits into good ones. Use a well-balanced diet, and reduce the starches, sugars and stimulants to the minimum. After 45, the body usually needs less heavy food than before, and some kind of dietry reform is needed, not only to help you get through the menopause with as little discomfort as possible, but also to help you remain healthy all the rest of the years of your life.

The greatest change should be in your mental attitude. If you have been expecting poor health during this period, expect good health. With sensible care of the body you will need experience no loss of physical attractiveness.

Instead of thinking of yourself as growing old, take the attitude that the richest part of life is just beginning. You are just getting ready to enjoy the full summer of life. Watch your mental attitude and build up an expectancy of good health, plenty of energy, and plenty of happiness.

When you build up an interest in living, eat wisely, sleep enough, and exercise, you will find the so-called "Dangerous Age" is deeper, richer and more constructive than the earlier years.

Those especially interested in the "change of life" are invited to send for my 2 page article on The Menopause. This article will be forwarded to you, along with the general-diet hints, when you write to me. Please enclose a large self-addressed envelope and 6c in stamps.

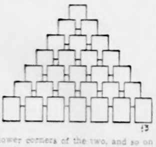
McKenney On Bridge

By WM. E. McKENNEY, America's Card Authority

Pyramid is a solitaire played with one pack of 52 cards. Shuffle, then deal 28 cards face up in the form of a triangle or pyramid as follows: One card, then a row of two cards below it but overlapping the two lower corners of the first, then a row of three cards overlapping the lower corners of the two, and so on up to a row of seven cards. The overlapping of cards in this tableau must be done accurately, since the rule of play is that no card is available for play until all cards that cover or overlap it have been removed. At the outset, all cards of the row of seven are available. To release any card in the row of six, two covering cards must be removed.



Whenever a king is available, remove it to a discard pile. Whenever there are available two cards whose spots total 13 (counting ace as 1, jack 11, queen 12), remove these two cards together to the discard pile.

Turn cards up one by one from the top of the pack and place them in a single talon pile, overlapped so that all are visible. The talon is separate from the discard pile. The top card of the talon is always available. The pairing of cards to make 13 may take one card from talon and one from tableau or both from tableau—or both from talon if the two uppermost cards total 13.

The object of play is to get both tableau and talon cleared away into the discard pile by the time the pack is run through once. The game is completely won only when all 48 cards other than kings are paired off in 13's. Partial victories may be reckoned, when the tableau is cleared away, by counting the number of cards left in the talon.

Sunshine Shafts

Maloney: Good mornin', Missus Murphy, an' is Pat at home?

Mrs. Murphy: Sure, Denis, and where are your eyes? Isn't that his shirt facing ye on the loine?

He: I hope you will pardon my dancing on your feet—I'm a little out of practice.

She: I don't mind your dancing on them. It's the continual jumping on and off that aggravates me.

The famous film star was worried and his friends were trying to find out what was wrong.

"Well," said one of them, "I don't see what you've got to worry about. You've got everything you want—success, admiration, youth, and above all, plenty of money."

"Yes," siged the star, "I suppose that's what really matters in life—having success and money."

"Then what's troubling you?" persisted the other.

"I am just wondering," came the star's reply, "what good all my money is to me. Here am I with everything I want—and my poor old mother has to starve in a garret."

Joins Royal Canadian Navy

Captain of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, undefeated winners of the senior intercollegiate rugby championship last year, Alfred Hurley has received word that his application as a sub-lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Navy has been accepted. He will report for duty within a month.

YOUTH groups throughout the city will gather at the Corona hotel Wednesday and Thursday for the annual Edmonton Youth Conference, during which legislation passed at the Dominion Youth Congress at Winnipeg will be reviewed and either endorsed or rejected. About 30 groups were represented at the conference last year, and a similar number is expected to attend again this year.

This will be one of the most important conferences ever held by the youth of Edmonton. Faced as they are by the present international conflict and the far-reaching effect that the aftermath of the war will undoubtedly have on the lives of the youth of the country, policies to be decided upon at this conference will have to be studied in the deepest detail. Questions relating to education, youth training projects, work projects, etc., are the main items on the agenda.

CONDUCT of Canadian youth at these conferences has long been a matter of deep gratification and pride to businessmen and political leaders in the dominion. For our Canadian youth have always kept in mind that their actions are being watched not only by youth groups, but by everyone in Canada. Rash, hot-headed statements such as featured the American Youth Congress in New York early this year are not allowed at the Canadian gatherings, for these young men and women have too great a pride in their country and in their respective organizations to go off the 'deep end.'

Conduct of the American youth at the New York Congress is almost beyond belief. Shortly before the opening of the congress, the organization was roundly criticized by Senator Martin Dies of Texas. Mrs. Roosevelt came to the support of the congress, but when she addressed the assembly she was hardly able to gain a hearing from the turbulent gathering. And the rash, unpatriotic statements by delegates from all sections of the United States did a hundred times more harm than Senator Dies' investigation, besides losing the respect and support of the greater part of the country. Canadians can well be proud of their youth.

THE executive and directors of the Edmonton and District Boys' and Girls' fair are putting the finishing touches to organization work for the exhibition, which opens May 1. Present indications point towards a record entry from city schools, while officials in charge of the fair are hoping that young people from towns and country districts surrounding the city will take advantage of the opportunity to match their skill with city youth by swelling the entry list. With the fair only two weeks away, all boys and girls planning to enter should get their entry forms in immediately.

HOBBIES, PETS DEPARTMENT TO FEATURE FAIR

By JEANETTE McINTYRE

When the Boys' and Girls' Fair opens on May 1 one of the largest displays will be that of the department of crafts, hobbies and pets. Ralph Miller, a student of Eastwood high school, who is in charge of this department with the help of his directors, has made it possible for the prospective exhibitor to enter every possible phase of their hobbies.

The class of manual training is under the co-directorship of Jim McBride and Alex Sollanych, students of Technical high school. A new division consisting of ski-making has been introduced so that those ski enthusiasts that make their own skis may have the chance to exhibit them. This division is open to any student regardless of grade or school attended. For students attending Technical there are many sections in which they may enter such as cabinet making, wood turning and ornamental ironwork.

All dogs may be entered in the class provided for them by Director Jack Quilley of that class. A large number of sections have been introduced for various kinds of dogs, such as sporting dogs which include Chesapeakes, setters, spaniels; working dogs including collies, Great Danes and Newfoundlands.

MUSICAL DOGS

There are also special sections in which musical dogs can be entered, that is the loudest howler, and another for the novelty dogs which are best trained in obedience and tricks.

This year the class of ponies is under the directorship of Jack Cook, a student of Westmount. All competitions will take place at the Edmonton Saddle club grounds. The Jack Williams trophy will be presented to the champion rider.

Notice is to be taken that the closing date for the above two classes is Friday, May 3.

Everyone knows that time flies but every boy and girl doesn't know just how fast. Well, today is the 13th and just one week from today, Saturday, is the closing date for entries in the majority of classes.

Boys and girls from the rural districts may send in their entry forms along with the fee to the fair office in the Y.M.C.A. While city entrants may also mail their entries in, it is preferred that the entrant should take them down to the fair office personally. Additional entry forms may be obtained from any director or from the Y.M.C.A. or the Y. W. C. A. As the exhibition of work begins on May 1, all exhibits must be at the fair office by Saturday, April 27, so that exhibits can be arranged for display.

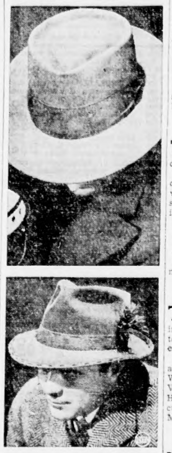
Norwood C.G.I.T. Planning Concert

On Tuesday evening the Norwood senior group, High Flyers, made plans for their concert which will be held May 3. Many interesting numbers performed by the girls will comprise the program. The play presented in the drama festival at McDougall church will be the main feature. Tickets are now on sale.

Fire Prevention

As annually for some years, the proclamation concerning National Fire Prevention Week published in The Canada Gazette includes a section calling upon Scout leaders to give instructions to their boys in the best means of co-operating with municipal fire departments.

Spring Hats



This business of buying a man's hat is as confusing as a chess player in a basketball game. Women's hats are supposed to (and do) look dizzy, but a man's hat should look fairly sane, spruce and smart. So just to help young Edmonton males in selecting their new spring headgear above are two of the more popular styles this season. Men's hats have gone telescope—not in the way women's hats have though. They are up-in-front and down-in-back. Note the flattened top and wide brim of the hat in the top picture. At the bottom is a snappy model for sportswear.

McDougall, Technical Students Hold Annual Proms: Final Exams Looming

By DOROTHY CURREY

THE saying "all good things must come to an end" certainly fitted in with the McDougall Commercial Prom held last night in the Masonic Temple. A throng of enthusiastic dancers, both jitterbugs and otherwise, voted our Spring Dance a huge success. A great number of McDougall's ex-students and also students from other schools were in attendance. Patrons for the affair were Mr. and Mrs. E. Garlough and Mr. and Mrs. A. Henderson.

The lit, which was to have been held on April 5, will be held on April 19. The postponement was due to the gym being occupied by the public school. Athletic crests are to be awarded to all members of the basketball teams and field and track teams.

A record is to be kept of all the boys who have attended McDougall and who are now in the Army, Navy or Air Force. Any names would be welcomed, and an honor roll will be made of them in the Year Book.

TECHNICAL—By Pat McMillan

THE final "big" dance of the year was held Friday evening and it seemed like "old times" having so many of last year's graduation class present.

The Inter-Christian Fellowship at their meeting Tuesday distributed questionnaires to its members. The results of these will determine who are deserving of the new I.S.C.F. award pins. The Camera Club spent Wednesday evening in the "dark room" developing rolls and printing same.

At the council meeting Wednesday, Jim McBride and Don Driscoll were chosen unanimously to represent Tech at the Youth Congress being held April 17 and 18 at the Corona hotel. The council also set the date for the graduation banquet for May 31.

Plans are under discussion by the Students' Council to produce a motion picture of Tech students at work in the shops.

ST. MARY'S—By Josephine Nuss

THE students from St. Vincent's, St. Mary's, and St. Joseph's thronged the auditorium on the afternoon of Friday last, when, amid thundering cheers, the cup for Public Speaking changed hands from St. Mary's to St. Joseph's. The annual contest among the three schools is a major event of the year, and without doubt the speakers excelled themselves.

His Excellency Archbishop MacDonald gave a very encouraging address, and presented the prizes, which were donated by the Catholic Women's League. The winners are as follows: Jennie Hamernyk, St. Vincent's High; Marjorie Hefferman and Irene Koblanski (tie), St. Mary's High; and Donald MacGillivray, St. Joseph's High, who carried off the cup for St. Joseph's. The judges were Reverend R. V. Britton, Mrs. D. M. O'Brien, and Mr. P. M. Dunne.

EASTWOOD—By Wilma Van Deelen

WITH many heaves and sighs E.H.S. Grade XII students crossed the last "T" and dotted the final "i", as the last Easter exam was completed. Activities have generally been slowed down as a result of the exams.

The Gazette committee reports that preparations for the Graduation Gazette are being carried on. In charge of the graduation pictures, which are to be a secial feature of the edition, is Lillian Jackson. The Gazette staff is carrying on a campaign for ads, in which all interested students are taking part. A prize will be awarded to the student procuring the greatest number of ads.

Taking part in the recent production of "The Bartered Bride" was an Eastwood student, Nick Gafiuk. Nick, who was in the Parents' Lit, is well known around the school for his musical ability.

WESTMOUNT—By Bert Nightingale

ACCORDING to custom, a young man's fancy at this season of the year, lightly turns to you know what. But what with mud, snow and all not only are thoughts of love being retarded but sports as well. In fact, the only item of athletic interest to report is the forthcoming issuance of crests for W.H.S. track and field enthusiasts. The base is a black "W" surmounted by a red "T" and a grey "F" on top. Messrs. Bud Hall and Doug Johnson are in charge of production.

Embryonic actors are being interviewed daily by dramatics-director Miss Manser as plans for an evening lit are laid. Featuring a play, individual "turns" and a minstrel show, the tentative date for the affair is April 30. Tickets go on sale shortly.

Misses Arline Pinch, Joan Diplock and Betty Alston were members of a team in a recent radio quiz, when they were defeated by a group from the Y.M.C.A. All the "quizzees" are on the advertising staff of the Red-Grey-Black.

SOUTH SIDE—By Kay Banham

GOOD news to chemistry students. Returning, after the Easter, we found a new chemistry laboratory waiting to be put into use. Instead of lab sessions being horrible nightmares, the new lab will change them into day-dreams (?)

Minds of the students are being distracted from lessons by the low rumble of machinery as a large scoop shovel removes earth from the basement of the new theatre, which is to be built on 109 street, across the road from the Garneau division.

Lastly, just a gentle reminder about the April lit, scheduled for April 27 in the Normal School. A dance will follow the lit.

VICTORIA HIGH—By Ib Nonnecke

THE Grade XII students are very excited these days as they look forward to the graduation exercises to be held in the near future. All those who qualified to graduate this year held a meeting in the assembly hall last week. Ninety-three pupils graduate this year—lowest in the history of the school. Hance Shortcliffe was elected "grad" class president.

Keen disappointment was felt throughout the school when it was learned that the year's play, "Lady Precious Stream", was postponed until next fall. Postponement resulted when Miss E. Howard, play director, became ill and was unable to continue. The play will be presented next fall. The senior and junior girls' basketball teams chalked up a pair of wins over the second-stringers Wednesday. Scores were 16-5 and 13-2, respectively.

A MAMMALIAN FLOWER

One day in early spring, years ago, I stood on a steep bank overlooking a bend in a river where, a short time before tons and tons of earth and clay had slipped down the slope carrying all before it, and burying all the grass and plant life that had previously covered the bank.

But Nature is irrepressible. Out of this minor catastrophe she was again coming to life. Upon the dull gray muddy background I saw a clump of bright yellow flowers gleaming in the spring sunshine.

I did not know the spring flowers so well in those days, and at first thought they were dandelions. But these flowers turned out to be colt's foot, a flower closely related to and superficially resembling the well-known flower of the fields.

The dandelion head grows on a single, slender, smooth, hollow stem—a "scape," botanists term it. The scape of the colt's foot is covered with cobwebby down and has a number of bracts sprouting out all the way up. These bracts are sort of undeveloped leaves.

This reminds us: Where are the leaves? Here and there on separate stems we find them quite apart from the scapes bearing the flowers. But if we dig down a little into the muddy earth we find the plant's long runners which bear both leaves and flowers.

As yet the leaves are not fully expanded. In fact, we often find the plant in full bloom with no leaves to be seen. But later in the season after the colt's foot flower has bloomed and gone to seed, the leaves expand into their full glory. They are really queer looking leaves, being strangely angled and cornered, deep green above and glove white beneath, and covered with the cobweb down as is the flower scape.

Yet another resemblance this humble dweller of mud has to the dandelion comes to light when the plant is in seed. After the golden yellow bloom has faded, the Colt's Foot rounds out its head into a profuse growth of silky down which sooner or later releases to the breeze a host of winged seeds.

But why, you ask, is this early golden bloom called Colt's Foot? Most likely because someone saw a fancied resemblance in the half opened leaf to the foot of a colt.

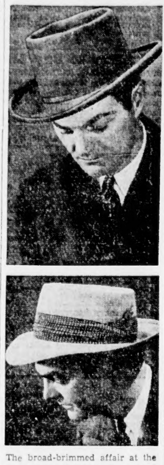
Find Lost Children

Numerous public service activities of the Scouts of India are similar to those of the Scouts of Canada. At the great annual festival at the Mahankali Temple the Secunderabad Scouts gave particular attention to first aid and the finding of lost children. Altogether 16 cases of lost children were dealt with and returned to their parents.

Another Medal

The Young Eagles of the Estonian Scout Union have made the first award of their new diploma and medal of "People's Friendship" to Lord Baden-Powell, "in recognition of his invaluable service in founding and promoting the international Scout Movement."

More Hats



The broad-brimmed affair at the top looks as if it had been swiped right off the head of an old-time western gambler—but it is one of the latest telescope models. It has a narrow silk "shoe-string" ribbon and the brim is wide and handsome. Note the fore-and-aft swing of the modernized "telescope" model shown at the bottom. Puggree bands of pleated silk have been growing in popularity on straw hats—here they are in all their glory on a lightweight felt for spring.

CHRIST CHURCH Y.P.S. ENTERTAINS CITY SOLDIERS

Christ Church Young People were hosts to 25 soldiers from the Edmonton barracks Monday evening. About thirty members of the Young People were also present.

The evening started out with a sing-song in which the soldiers eagerly took part. The main part of the evening consisted of dancing. At 10:30 p.m. lunch was served by the members consisting of coffee, sandwiches and cake. During the evening the young people were favored with a song from the sergeant in charge and one of his men.

At the head of arrangements were Miss Joyce Tanton and Mr. Purcey Brown.

Provincial Leader Visits Bruderheim

BRUDERHEIM, April 12. — Miss Carscadden, provincial girls' work secretary, visited the C. G. I. T. group at Bruderheim recently when she led the girls in several games and taught them the C. G. I. T. knot and clap. Refreshments were served following the meeting, which was attended by several of the girls' mothers.

ACTIVE SEASON PLANNED HERE BY WOLF CUBS

Plans for vigorous activity in Wolf Cub circles were prepared by members of the Old Wolf Council, who met Monday night to discuss the Edmonton and district spring cubbing program. A feature of the evening was the appointment of George Audley to the recently vacated post of District Cubmaster, succeeding Charlie Rowsell, who left the city several weeks ago. It was decided to conduct a football league which will be under the direction of G. Audley and will commence around May 1 with entries to be in the hands of the executive by the middle of the month.

The indoor cub rally, staged each year, will again see the Edmonton Optimist Club shields on the block for presentation to winners in large and small pack divisions. The shields will be awarded on a point basis and as usual it is expected that competition will be keen when the boys scramble for honors some Saturday afternoon during the first two weeks in May.

An "Akela Course" designed for the training of Cubmasters and their assistants will commence Friday, April 19 at 7:30 p.m. at St. Joachim's hall. The course will be supervised by Training Commissioner H. Holloway, with assistants F. S. Rowsell and Mr. Bayley, provincial Cub commissioner. It was announced that while there would be no official softball league this summer, a system of challenge games would be arranged.

"What time is it?"

"A quarter to."

"A quarter to what?"

"I don't know. Things got so bad I had to lay off one of the hands."

"What's the idea of wearing my raincoat?"

"It's raining. You wouldn't want your suit to get wet, would you?"

Dirt Removal

T'S A FOINE WAY T' CLEAN THE SILVER

It was baking day, and the new maid and her mistress were very busy.

"Mary," said the lady of the house, "stick a knife in that large plum cake and see if it comes out clean."

The maid was back in a few minutes.

"It came out wonderful clean, ma'am, so I stuck all the other dirty knives in, too."

"The noisiest corner in the world" is the title just conferred on Sixth avenue and Thirty-fourth street in New York City. The intersection of three main highways, three surface car lanes, and until recently, a double track of elevated railways, the corner was declared loudest in a survey conducted by the United States Office of Education. City dwellers can't sleep without noise, tests have proved, but babies don't like it. Rubber tires on perambulators, so the infant riders could get some rest, was the first step in the fight against noise!

A buried city has just come to light. It was the home of Indians in Colombia more than 4,000 years ago. The ruins include hundreds of stone idols, each 15 feet high, and cover more than 40 acres. Archeologists have done a tremendous amount of work in unearthing the stories of peoples, cities, and civilizations dead for centuries. But their work hasn't always been for pure science. Louis XIV had a committee of four of France's best archeologists who did nothing but unearth unique designs for his palace and discover historical items which could be twisted so that they increased his personal glory!

It'll be moving day soon for the 400 inhabitants of Hill, N.H. The residents voted at a meeting to transfer the entire town to a new location, as the present site is endangered by floods annually. Hill home-owners probably hope they'll be as fortunate as the people of Shawneeton, Ill. The state purchased a new town site for them when a flood-inspired general exodus was decided, and land owners received deeds to plots corresponding to their former holdings. The new Shawneeton was built as a model city, oval in design, with no part of it more than three blocks from the centre and the streets 100 feet wide.

Uncovered faces for women will be the style in Usbekistan, Russia, if the owners of the faces have anything to do with it. The women have just staged a public demonstration, tearing off their veils. They can hardly be blamed—Usbek veils are hideous contraptions, made of black horsehair. They're far different from those worn by Mohammedan women, which not only accentuate the beauty of their wearers but serve as a mark of distinction, as slaves and persons of so-called lower classes aren't allowed to put them on.

"HARD TO GET" ISSUES

How often does one examine a collection of, say, up to several thousand different stamps and find that there is no representation of many countries? The larger stamp issuing countries will possibly have a few hundred each of the commoner stamps but there is not one item from many smaller countries, some of which we mention hereunder.

After obtaining quotations from dealers in many countries, it is found possible to list representative sets which make the greatest showing for a small collection at the smallest outlay. Certain stocks of stamps that are now obsolete are closely held by the dealers who were fortunate to buy-in remainders and it takes real shopping to locate some stamps. Our club is not in the stamp dealing business and from time to time special offers have been made to members of items that are not always on the market. Those who are interested in the following may write the club director who will be pleased to assist them in locating them.

Abyssinia, 1931, 3 varieties, 10c; Albania, 1913, 2 varieties, 10c; Armenia, 1922, 3 varieties, 7c; Bolivia, 1928, 3 varieties, triangles, 8c; Crete, 1900-10, 5 varieties, 15c; Dominican Republic, 1938, 2 varieties, maps, 7c; Epirus, 1914, 4 varieties, 10c; Georgia, 1919-20, 5 varieties, 7c; Memel, 1922, 2 varieties, 5c; Manchukuo, 1932, 3 varieties, 5c; Mongolia, 1932, 2 varieties, 5c; Montenegro, 1896, 12 varieties, 20c; Persia, 1929, 4 varieties, 5c; Samoa, 1899, 2 varieties, 10c; San Marino, 1925-6, 3 varieties, 7c; Serbia, 1901-3, 6 varieties, 7c; Siberia, 1919, 1 variety, 5c; Siam, 1920, 5 varieties, 7c; Spain, 1930, the famous Goya nude, 25c; Tannu Tuva (Northern Mongolia), 1934, 2 varieties, diamond - shaped, 7c; White Russia, 1920, 10 varieties, complete issues of the country, 15c. These prices are approximate but will give readers an idea of the cost of obtaining a "showing" of such issues. There are many small Crown colonies of Great Britain, and French and Portuguese colonial issues that may be represented in the album at about 10c per short set. It had been hoped to arrange a club offer of these, but adverse exchange rates, time involved in obtaining sets, etc., is against it. Possibly if enough members express an interest it may be possible to get the complete series at a special price.

Note: Comments on "sheets" of stamps will be completed next Saturday. See club corner No. 538 for former remarks.

LITTLE EVIE IS QUITE CERTAIN OF HER HOUNDS

It wasn't a new breed of bulldogs that was meant when little Evangeline Stanley, 6, announced with an outburst of excitement to her guest, little Miss Nettie: "We've got a bull puppy."

"No, 'Evie'," corrected her mother who thought she said bulldog, "the puppy's mother is a fox terrier so the puppy can't be a bulldog."

"But," explained Evie, "they have a little calf at Nettie's home and they say that it's a bull calf, and this puppy," she continued with finality, "is a bull puppy."

Man Sentenced To One-Year Term For Dangerous Driving

PORT ARTHUR, April 13.—George Gourley of Geraldton, Ont., was sentenced to one year in an Ontario reformatory yesterday when he pleaded guilty in district court here to driving a motor vehicle on a highway in a manner dangerous to the public.

Gourley was arrested following an automobile accident Dec. 3 in which Bill Clubb, prominent Saskatoon hockey player, was fatally injured near Little Long Lac, mining centre 200 miles northeast of Port Arthur.

Empire Plan Progressing According to Schedule Says Air Vice-Marshal

VANCOUVER, April 13—The British Commonwealth air training scheme is progressing in accordance with a pre-arranged plan, Air Vice-Marshal G. M. Croil, chief of air staff, the Royal Canadian Air Force, said yesterday, and in some cases it has been possible to anticipate the plan.

"It is possible that from time to time in certain matters we may have to admit that we cannot keep pace with the time table," he told the Vancouver Board of Trade in a luncheon address, "but these are not apparent at present.

AIM AT ACCELERATION

"The aim is, so far as it is possible, to accelerate the program, in order that the output of pilots, air observers, wireless operators and air gunners may reach the fighting services more rapidly."

The air vice-marshal said that recent campaigns in Europe such as Germany's invasion of Poland and Russia's attack on Finland had shown one of the essential things in modern warfare was an air force capable of denying the enemy the mastery of the air and attaining that mastery itself.

It was apparent, he said, that the British commonwealth was faced with the task of creating an air force greater than that of the enemy in point of numbers and efficiency in order that this mastery might be attained.

MUST TRAIN STAFFS

He described the intesive training that will be given to air crews under the air training plan, but emphasized that before this could begin "we must first train that large body numbering many thousands of personnel who are required to man the training establishments."

Another feature was that "this plan requires the preparation of a great number of airdromes." Planes for every airdrome were either ready now or would be ready in a few months, he said. It was expected the work of developing most of the airdromes would be undertaken as soon as the frost was out of the ground.

What To Do

Does the bride wear the same style wedding gown at a formal noon, afternoon or evening wedding? Is it necessary for the bride to wear gloves and, if so, are they removed during the ring ceremony? These points have given me no little concern. Thank you for your answer. PUZZLED.

Answer—Whether the ceremony is to take place at noon, at 4:30 or 8:30 p.m., the costume rules for the bride are pretty much the same. Her gown, usually, is white, although many fashionable brides prefer pastel shades. It may be of satin, velvet, brocade, mousseline de soie, chiffon, lace, taffeta, moire silk or organdy, depending upon the season of the year and the individual preference of the bride. The lines of the gown should be as simple as possible. The neckline may be of whatever style the bride prefers, as long as the decolletage is not too deep. The back must be entirely covered, of course. Sleeves are an essential part of every wedding gown. If they are long, the bride need wear no gloves. However, if they are short, she must wear long white kid or French suede gloves, with the provision that the fourth finger be free to receive her wedding ring. Instead of cutting into a perfectly good pair of long gloves the bride may economically rip the perpendicular seam to within half an inch of the top and then just slip the glove finger back when the ring is placed on her hand. The gloves may then be repaired and used again.

Status Of Danes Remains Unchanged In Western Canada

WINNIPEG, April 13.—Status of western Canada's Danish population will remain unchanged as long as the Canadian government refuses to recognize the Nazi regime in Denmark, P. A. Hermanson, Danish consul in Winnipeg, said yesterday.

"Great Britain has stated that Denmark can no longer be considered neutral but the Danish consular service is still in existence in Canada," Mr. Hermanson said.

"I don't know what may happen in the next two or three days but until the Canadian government makes a move the status of Danes in western Canada will remain unchanged."

Two types of military combat planes used by the French air corps have a plate of quarter-inch steel armor behind the pilot's back and beneath hhim. The armor will stop rifle-calibre machine gun bullets.

Netherlands Government Tells of Attempts to Maintain Neutrality

THE HAGUE, April 13. — The Netherlands government, immersed in new defence measures, issued an "orange book" today covering the diplomatic steps it had taken from November to April in protesting violations of Dutch neutrality by both the Germans and the allies.

The reports of the diplomatic exchanges were intended to show the balanced stand pursued by the government regardless of the belligerent involved.

NAZIS SEIZE BRITONS

The orange book included diplomatic correspondence over violations of Netherlands territory by airplanes of both sides, attacks on Dutch ships by German submarines and warplanes and the Nov. 11 border incident at Venlo, when German guards crossed the frontier and seized two British secret agents.

Calling this latter "one of the most flagrant violations of neutrality," the book said the Netherlands government recalled that conversations between the two Britons and a "highly placed officer of the German army were conducted on two occasions with a Dutch officer present."

"Since the men who committed the outrage wore civilian clothes, there was at first no occasion to hold the German government responsible but an inquiry was asked for," the orange book related.

PROTEST UNANSWERED

"Later, however, a German press communique announced that the attack was carried out by German officials, and then a serious protest was made. But like many other protests from small nations to Germany, this protest also has gone unanswered to this day in spite of many reminders."

For their part, the Allies were told that their blockade of Germany had imposed a multitude of hardships on The Netherlands by hitting the sea trade of this shipping nation.

In 1940 the first national automobile show was held in the United States.

BBC STARTING BROADCASTS TO NORWAY NATION

LONDON, April 13.—A series of daily news broadcasts in Norwegian and English, sanctioned by the Norwegian legation and government officials, was inaugurated last night by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

The broadcasts were opened with a message from Erik Colban, Norwegian minister here, stating that C. J. Hembro, president of the Norwegian parliament, had officially announced Thursday that until the government had re-established control over broadcasts in all Norway, news from that country and declarations by members of the government will be broadcast as fully as possible by the B.B.C.

The message said only direct broadcasts from the Norwegian government or those coming from the B.B.C. should be considered bona fide by Norwegians.

A daily broadcast in Danish for the Danish people also was inaugurated last night.

NAZI STAMP COVERS REICH HOME TRAGEDY

United Press

TWIN FALLS, Ida., April 13.—A Twin Falls family today received a letter from relatives in Germany. It contained the usual family talk of no interest to any censor who might have read it. At the end of the letter, several German stamps were pasted. The writer said they were for the recipient's collection, "if you are still collecting stamps."

That seemed strange to the Twin Falls woman — she never had collected stamps. After puzzling for a while, she steamed the stamps from the letter.

(Written beneath the stamps were three words:

"We are starving."

JOBLESS ARE BIG PROBLEM FOR DOMINION

Unemployment Presents Important Challenge To Government

By GRANT DEXTER

Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, April 13.—It is a fair bet that no problem is so much discussed and so little studied as the unemployment problem. Few people seem to be aware that the challenge of the unemployment problem is second in importance only to the war. If we do not want to have 450,000 people permanently on the dole, something must be done to re-equip the breadwinners among them for work.

Last November, to take the latest statistics, there were 132,903 fully employable persons on relief. There were 146,866 in December but the detail which follows is not yet available for December.

To what extent can the war take care of them by direct enlistment?

WAR SMALL HELP

To begin with 27,697 of them are women. Of the men, 47,143 are more than 40 years of age; 25,401 more than 50. Another 9,351 are 19 years or younger. Therefore, of 132,903 fully employable persons now on the dole, only 48,712 are men of normal military age. Many of these men are married and having regard to the fact that the fighting forces will not accept a recruit with more than two children, it is probable that many of those who are psysically fit would not be accepted.

To get another revealing cross light on this problem you must go back as far as September when there were 125,407 fully employable people on urban relief. Beyond a doubt these citizens are still on relief and it is revealing to know how long they have been without jobs.

Among the 125,407 were 84,098 heads of families of whom no less than 14,548 had not had a job for more than five years; 4,540 had not worked for from 4 to 5 years; 5,724 for from 3 to 4 years; 6,817 for from 2 to 3 years; 12,777 for from 1 to 2 years. The balance had been out of work less than a year.

Then there were 14,232 individuals, as distinct from heads of families, of whom 1,539 had been without jobs for more than 5 years; 895 for from 4 to 5 years; 1,173 for from 3 to 4 years and so on.

If you relate the long periods without work to the age groupings it must surely be plain that it will be exceedingly difficult to restore the earning power of many of these unemployed. A man who has not worked for more than five years and is over 50 years of age is not a good prospect.

Yet the need to restore many of our unemployed to work is urgent.

There is the item of cost. This fiscal year the direct relief expenditures of the Dominion will run to $26,000,000 which is but 40 per cent of the total. And in addition the Dominion spent some $19,000,000 on relief projects of one kind or another.

The relief cost to the nation at large must have been close to $100,000,000. Can the country continue to support the war and relief as well?

More than that, the real productive capacity of Canada is the skill and industry of the people. Must this country struggle along with some 146,000 fully employable citizens idle, a drain on those who work?

GREAT SIGNIFICANCE

It is agreed that there can be no real inflation until a nation reaches the maximum of its capacity to produce goods and services. When that point is reached, any attempt to further increase production is disastrous. Prices rise and strains and stresses develop in every part of the economic machine.

The return to work of the employable people who are now on relief would therefore be of great military significance. The production of 140,000 pairs of hands might well be the difference between victory and defeat.

Everything, therefore, points to a fresh attack on the problem of unemployment. After seven months of war it is clear that war alone will not solve it. But, on the other hand, war makes a solution of it more essential than ever before.

FATHER KILLS SUFFERING SON BY DROWNING

HOUGHTON, Mich., April 13.—A father's "mercy killing" of his deaf, dumb and blind son—by drowning him in a wash boiler—was disclosed here last night.

Sheriff John G. Salmi announced that Abraham White, 53-year-old railroad section hand, had confessed killing his son Frederick, 15, at the family home yesterday while the mother was shopping. Frederick's head had been held under water until he drowned, Salmi said.

The boy, Sheriff Salmi said, was mentally incompetent and suffered frequent convulsions. He was the couple's only child.

Upon her return home Mrs. White found the body and a note to her saying:

"Dear Mandy:

"Frederick had a hard convulsion after you left. I am not going to see him suffer any longer. We have prayed to the Lord to take him away, but it hasn't happened, so I am going to do away with him. I know it will be a terrible shock to you, but I hope you can stand it."

White was arrested last night at the funeral home where his son's body was taken. The sheriff said he would be charged with murder.

SUICIDE CLUB INVESTIGATED IN COLOMBIA

PEREIRA, Colombia, April 13.—A young couple blew themselves to pieces by exploding dynamite sticks held in their mouths, cigar fashion, yesterday and police opened an investigation into reports of a fantastic "suicide club" whose 13 members have pledged themselves to self-destruction in the same manner.

The death of 18-year-old Maria Arboleda and 21-year-old Martiniano Zapata in yesterday's blast followed a similar incident Thursday night in which Manuel Marin, a miner, lighted a fuse which set off a piece of dynamite in his mouth, killing himself and injuring four others. The explosion wrecked the cafe which Marin picked for his suicide.

Senorita Arboleda and Zapata ended their lives in an embrace in the Union hotel.

The Better Half

A Bulletin Short Story Complete on This Page Every Saturday

By Phyllis Bottome

ONE moment Carol Endicott was edging her way on skis, in what she proudly felt was a workmanlike manner, past a small ravine, the ski twisted in a bush higher than her head and one ankle unaccountably loose beneath her, so that her foot seemed to be turning round to look at her reproachfully. A mere mouthful of snow had dislodged itself under Carol's light weight and unobtrusively bundled both itself and her into the bottom of the ravine, but it had sufficed to work this sudden miracle.

For a moment Carol felt more guilty than hurt.

"I won't shout at once, till I see if I can't get out by myself," she thought defensively. "Bob would think me such a little idiot to fall in here, and he'd be rather proud of me if I found my own way out." Many skiers have accidents Carol, reassured herself by thinking, and since there is only one role for a young English girl to play in any accident, and that is the role of an unruffled heroine, let her then play that! The worst of having married a man who was a champion skier was that he was liable to think rather scornfully of an untrained wife, and also liable to be on the top of a mountain when his wife fell into a ravine at the bottom. In this case, Carol told herself mournfully, it wasn't even the same mountain.

But the fiery pain in her ankle did not die down, it became every instant more savage, and Carol found that wriggle as she might, she could do nothing to dislodge the foot in the tree, nor make the injured one change its reproachful attitude, she rightly came to the conclusion that she had broken her ankle, and had better be helped out of the ravine. She gave a playful, ladylike shout, but there was no answer. Adolf Schieffrigger, her ski teacher, should be on the lookout for accidents like this, but as a matter of fact, he had warned the school against the edges of ravines only the day before, and had not been watching Carol, who had from the first rather lagged behind the rest of them. Her first shout only reached the top of the ravine and the school was by now out of sight.

Schieffrigger had counted his flock several times over already, and having now succeeded in shepherding them into a circle of diminutive foothills, which, while reminding his pupils of the Matterhorn, seemed to him the merest child's play, he sat down on his wind-jacket and was proceeding to take an afternoon snack. No one heard anything more of Carol, although one lady said afterwards she had heard someone yodelling in the distance as she supposed for fun.

Silence Closed Over Injured Skier

Silence closed over Carol. The sky above the ravine was a firm intense blue; fitting over it like a lid.

The first thing to do in an avalanche, Bob had told Carol, was to get rid of your skis, but how could she get rid of hers, when she couldn't reach the foot in the tree and something warned her on no account to touch the other one? It was no use giving you rules for accidents, Carol thought, when the accidents themselves prevented you from carrying them out.

All the could do was to lie and look at the grim blue lid above her, or the odd and sometimes beautiful studies of the snow heaped on the bushes. She though less pleasantly of these, when one of them hurled its entire contents without a hint of warning upon her upturned face. When Carol had shaken it off, she started shouting again and this time she found herself shouting in a much less ladylike way.

She was two miles away from the little town in Sauerfeld, but there might be farms well within reach, even if one of the school could still hear her.

Carol went on shouting at short intervals and with determination; but nothing happened. It was a cold day and the sun had begun to go down, when once it had gone, there would be a very sharp drop of temperature indeed.

Carol didn't mean to be unkind to Bob, but she began to think that he had overlooked the main duty of a husband. Before the next half hour was over, without meaning to be unkind to Bob, Carol had gone very far down the road of marital vituperation, although it did not do her any particular good. What was the use of beating an unresponsive image in your mind while the real Bob was gliding, with innocent exhilaration over far-away mountains

The pathos of Bob's situation began to dawn upon Carol. She did not dare, somehow or other, to think about the pathos of her own. Poor Bob, so much older than she was—so brave, so reckless, so extremely competent, and having already had to face tragedy so many times! For Bob had lost both his sons by a previous marriage each in a disaster, and probably neither of these clumsy fatalities would have occurred if their father had been there to deal with them! One son had been swept away by an avalanche, and the other killed on a motorcycle. What had drawn Bob to Carol had been her strange likeness to his youngest boy. Lying there slowly freezing in the trap of snow, Carol saw again the light leap into Bob's eyes at their first meeting.

He had caught sight of her across the floor of a Bauern Stube. She was dancing, and the party of skiers, to which Bob belonged, had come in for a drink on their way home.

Carol hadn't met Bob before, though like everyone else in Sauerfield she knew him well by sight.

When those fierce, delighted eyes challenged her across the Stube, Carol had smiled back.

She had hardly been conscious of the invitation her eyes had held, but Bob had been conscious of it. He had crossed the room, in two swift strides, and taken her straight out of her partner's arms; nor had he let her go again till far on into the night.

Carol Found Freezing To Death Wasn't Easy

Ah, if she could only feel once more the close hard grip of his arms! Bob danced magnificently, as he did everything else. Carol tried to swallow a lump in her throat that seemed to be growing larger and larger. They had been wonderfully happy, even if he was twenty years older than she, and even if people had been horrible too about Bob's first wife! All the busybodies of Sauerfeld taking sides and behaving as if a perfectly ordinary undisputed divorce was a sort of crime!

Carol herself had never come into the case at all, and had been properly married to Bob. After the decree had been pronounced, even her own parents, though tiresome about the marriage at first, had accepted it without a qualm, and yet people behave as if Carol and Bob ought to leave Sauerfield, just because that aggravating woman insisted on remaining there!

Carol heard her husband's voice

The first Mrs. Endicott was also a first-class skier, but there were other places than Tyrol, where she could keep her tops of mountains to herself! Fortunately she didn't dance, and hadn't a cafe habit, so they're weren't obliged to meet often. Still with only one village street, Carol had got to know the lean, tall, muscular figure uncomfortably well by sight.

Carol started shivering; was it only the cold that made her flesh creep and her teeth chatter or was it the memory of those light eyes in the lined leathery face that never moved, when the first Mrs. Endicott passed Carol in the street. They were like pools of glacier water those hard eyes, so blue, so still, so cold!

People said freezing to death was easy, but those who said so couldn't have tried it. Carol wasn't comfortably sleepy, she was agonizingly awake. She felt as if the cold had invisible claws and was slowly pinching her to death between them. It had been a long time before the thought of death has reached Carol's conscious mind, but she began to think about it now. The pain in her ankle was furious, it was a grinding, demoralizing pain, stabbing at every nerve.

Carol still shouted at intervals, using her strength to its fullest limit; in between her shouts, she cried, till the tears froze her eyelashes together and made her stiffened cheeks immovable.

Carol began to feel confused. She lost the senes of where she was, or what was hapening to her. The blue shadows between the trees took add shapes, and once she was almost sure she saw a wolf with burning eyes.

It wasn't Bob; It Was His First Wife

She tried to fix her mind on Bob again. She couldn't remember their love, she could only remember the sorrow she had seen in his eyes for his dead sons. Once Bob had said to her, "Your hair is just like Ted's."

"I won't fail him," Carol roused herself to cry fiercely. "He shan't have to go through it again. Not a third time!" She drew the last remaining strength of her body into one desperate call.

Was it an echo that answered her? "I suppose one can have mirages in one's ears too." Carol told herself tremblingly, but the echo gave her courage to shout back: and then clearly, far more clearly than her own shout, Carol heard the answering voice. It was coming nearer her, it wasn't only in her brain, it was close by, the snow above the top of the ravine rustled under someone's feet. She saw a figure standing against the sky line, a tall dark shadow, that might be Bob himself. The figure took off its skis and tied them together. The neat movements, the small rustling sounds stretched time, until it seemed to split. Very little of Carol was still conscious, her eyes were half filmed over, and she couldn't move her chin to shout again. But the rustling grew steadily louder, the figure needed no guidance, it was descending in carefully directed plunges. There was light enough left for Carol to see that weatherbeaten face and to look into those glacier eyes.

It was not Bob who had come to her rescue after all, it was Bob's wife, the first Mrs. Endicott. But had she come to her rescue? The clear eyes looked strangely into Carol's, then flickered as if the spirit behind them was unsure of its own purpose.

"Now she will kill me," Carol thought, roused to fresh terror, "or worse still just leave me here to die. She has a right to leave me. I made Bob leave her."

Love had swept them off their feet; how often Carol had fallen back on that consoling cliche. But there is always the question of where one's feet are first. Like the ravine, for instance, a foot or two further from the edge would have made all the difference to the loosened snow.

"He didn't want to leave her at first," Carol reminded herself. "He said, 'I oughtn't to see you again. I'm married.' And Carol had answered, 'Does that matter?'"

"You seem to have got yourself into a pretty pickle," the first Mrs. Endicott said in a clear, cheerful voice. "That ankle's broken, isn't it? Well, we'll get the other foot out of the tree first, anyhow."

Mrs. Endicott Carried Carol Out

Apparently she was going to save Carol. She freed the one foot from its precarious position, quickly and neatly snapping it out of its ski, then she dealt as neatly but much more carefully with the injured foot. She drew out a big pocket knife, split one of her sticks and cut the boot open, firmly binding the ankle between two pieces of stick with a ski binder. It hurt a good deal but the ankle no longer felt so wickedly uncertain and being set free to swell, lessened the sharpest agony.

"There is only one thing to do now," the unemotional, clipped voice remarked, "and that is for you to get on my back. I shall crouch close to you, you must roll toward me and put your arms round my neck. I can hold the bad leg steady, the other you must use to grip with. I shall have to have one hand free to climb out by."

But how could she get on to this creature's back, Carol asked herself querulously, how could she be supposed to move herself at all? She was wedged into something far more adhesive than mere earth. She couldn't get out; and by this time she had begun to doubt if she even wanted to! Wouldn't it be better to lie still and not be rescued? She had forgotten Bob; and this restless, energetic figure rustling about so close to her seemed merely a new danger.

The straight back reared itself close; at any rate Carol was glad she hadn't got to look into those inhuman eyes again. It was bad enough to see the line of neck between the cap and the windcoat.

"Now roll toward me," the tranquilly authoritative voice suggested. "You'll feel freer when you've once moved. I'll give you a hoist."

Her whole body tore itself upward. She was no longer on the ground, she was swinging in the moveless air.

The blue lid of the sky moved upward, but the sides of the ravine still stared white and cold above them pitilessly high, punctuated with black tree stems.

Up they crawled somehow, in a series of heaves and pauses. What it felt like to the first Mrs. Endicott, Carol had no idea.

She moved forward, with the weight of Carol on her back, through the deep snow in a series of crablike movements, with the help of pine stems and underbrush. Probably she left all emotions about it to Carol. She just moved. When she saw she could get a firm grip above her, and that the snow was capable of holding under her feet, she swung herself up and waited to make a fresh plan for the next plunge.

It Was Terrible To Look Into That Face

It was difficult to judge the depth of the snow, but on an upward slope it did not vary greatly. The first Mrs. Endicott just managed to keep the injured leg from the side of the trees, and the frozen girl on her back; and that was all she had set out to do; if the snow held they would get her to the top, the frost was on their side, nor did it occur to her to ask what she would do if the snow loosened.

The pain in her ankle was furious, it was grinding demoralizing pain, stabbing at every nerve.

They reached the top of the ravine in safety close to Mrs. Endicott's skis, and as soon as she had recovered enough breath to speak she said to Carol:

"I'm going to slip you off on your good side into the snow. You'll be all right; and I've got to put my skis on."

A gasping voice cried, "You won't leave me?"

Mrs. Endicott, putting on her skis, with her back turned to Carol, said: "No, certainly not," conclusively, rather than kindly. Then she stood up, looking taller and leaner than ever. She seemed always to be looking down on Carol from a great height with those enigmatic eyes. They did not express either scorn or pity. They expressed nothing.

"Now," Mrs. Endicott said briskly. "I've got to hold you in front of me on my skis, you'll face me, with your hands on my hips. Take a good grip. I'll tie this leg to the other so that it won't dangle. All you've got to do is to hold on. We shall move rather fast, but don't be afraid. I'm rather a steady skier, and it's the easiest possible slope. There's a farm halfway down. Put all your weight on that good foot."

Carol found herself swung up again, facing her enemy.

It was terrible to have to look into that steady face, but somehow or other the question of enmity seemed to have dropped.

Carol was being held, like a frozen bird, between those firm, warm hands.

They were off. It was a real flight, fantastic, swift and terrible. Yet it had a thrilling quality that made it akin to ecstasy.

Carol felt nothing but the air, she saw nothing but the white flicker of snow under the driving blades.

The only firmness in a flying world was in the hands that held her.

"I can't stand any more," Carol said to herself. "This is the end. I shall just have to drop."

The pace slackened.

A chalet shot up close to them in the colorless light.

"Drop if you like now," said the first Mrs. Endicott.

Slowly, Uncomfortably Her Mind Became Clear

When Carol came round she found herself lying on a mattress, at some distance from a big stove in a shadowy kitchen. She did not want to be any nearer the stove for she was prickling and burning all over, as if she were being eaten alive by an army of ants.

A tub of snow stood close to the mattress and the first Mrs. Endicott was kneeling beside her, cruelly but deftly rubbing the snow by turns over Carol's face, ears, hands and feet.

"Nothing has come off," her hard, cheerful voice proclaimed. "It's all surface frost bite, and you'll be none the worse for it in the end."

At intervals the awful rubbing ceased, and Carol found her head firmly against a shoulder as unyielding as a wooden board, while hot glue wein was being poured into the corner of her stiffened mouth.

Nothing else was alive in the room but a cat preoccupied with its own comfort and wholly indifferent to their strange activities. Carol had no idea how long Mrs. Endicott had been rubbing her, or how much glu wein she had swallowed, but the warmth began to come back to her in slow waves.

There was very little light in the room, and no sound but the heavy beat of a grandfather clock on the wall.

"There was only an old crone here, but I managed to get her going," Mrs. Endicott explained apologetically. "I didn't think she'd be much good to you so I sent her off to the village. She'll take her time over it, but she knows what to do. I've sent for guides and a stretcher and Col. Endicott if he is in the village. Probably the guides will know where he is." She spoke the name of her late husband as if she had never made his acquaintance.

After she had spoken she carried the tub of snow out of doors, and when she came back there was for the moment nothing more for her to do, so she sat down behind Carol at some distance from the mattress.

All Carol's moral and personal thoughts had fogged off into the direct simplicity of her needs, but now very slowly and uncomfortably they began to clear themselves into her mind again.

Why Did You Stay Here? It Made Things Awful

This woman, sitting so quietly in the shadowy room, was Bob's first wife.

"I didn't know you were like this," Carol said at last defensively, when she could no longer stand the loneliness of her thoughts. "You see — Bob never told me what you were like. He never told me anything at all about you—or about your life together. Never—anything"

"Why should he?" the quiet voice replied. "There was nothing to tell that concerned you. Our life was over. I should not have expected him to speak of me."

This hurt Carol more than she had expected; but not wholly for herself. It hurt her for Bob, it seemed to make him a sort of outcast, and it hurt Carol worst of all for this other woman, of whom it was natural for Bob not to speak.

"Then you really," Carol began again, sorting out her words with difficulty, "I mean you really had a life together? It wasn't, as I had always supposed, that you just didn't hit it off? I'd supposed—I'd hoped—that you didn't care."

The silence shut itself against Carol as if it had an active quality.

"I think," Carol began again after a long pause. "It's only fair! I think I ought to tell you something. I don't believe Bob would have liked me if I hadn't somehow or other reminded him of his son Ted."

There was a still longer silence after this, but it was less hostile.

At length the still figure moved. "Yes, I had noticed that," said the first Mrs. Endicott.

"Perhaps," Carol went on, encouraged by even this slight response, "perhaps it's been a disappointment to him that I haven't been more like you are. I've noticed that he goes off more and more on these long ski tours—that was why I was trying to learn. I wish you'd tell me something—something to help me with him. He's more like you really than he is like me. I don't mean it's only those twenty years—he's definitely more like!"

"You can hardly expect me to give you a recipe for keeping husbands," the first Mrs. Endicott answered with a grim half amused chuckle, "since I've so signally failed to keep my own."

Carol turned this over in her mind for a long time. The savage pain of the bites was growing less, even her ankle only throbbed in massive discomfort, but the pain in her mind had grown more acute.

"Why did you stay here?" Carol burst out at last. "It's made it so terribly hard. I don't mean only for us—though I've sometimes thought it's why Bob hates ever to be in the valley. But for yourself! It must be so terribly cruel for you to go on living here alone—where you used to be together. Why do you do it? Why don't you go away somewhere else—where you'd never have to see us—never have to think about us any more?"

I Could Have Killed You Quite Easily

It seemed at first as if the first Mrs. Endicott was not going to answer any more of Carol's questions, but at last she said stiffly:

"It was my home. One has a certain feeling for any place where one has watched the seasons change through the years. I have always lived a great deal in the open air, one can here, you know, Winter or Summer. The people here, too, suit me . . ."

She stopped, but Carol did not think she had finished, and after a long pause, she said reluctantly, as if the words were being dragged out of her, "My boys liked the place too."

Carol was silent, but she was only thinking over how she could best put together—not an excuse, but a sort of reason for Bob's having left the first Mrs. Endicott.

"Don't you think," she pleaded at last, "that it was really loving them that made Bob like me? It's the same thing, isn't it, perhaps that makes him go off so, all alone to the tops of mountains? Don't you think he's wanting all the time—and perhaps only wanting—to escape from the memory of having lost them? Not to have to think about them any more?"

Mrs. Endicott got up, went to the door and opened it, looking out for a long time into the clearness of the night, swept clean by frost and sown thick with stars.

"I thought I heard them coming," she said at least turning back to Carol. "One hears a long way off in this clear air. I am sorry I had no morphia with me. I was not on a tour, or of course I should have had some with me. You are a brave girl, otherwise I could have been no use to you. As to what you say, I have sometimes thought it might be partly true. He needed to escape from his grief, whereas to me it was a sort of companion. 'Here I and sorrow sit'—I suppose it was like that. After twenty years of marriage you will find a certain integration takes place—and it is difficult for one person not to affect, and even to invade, the personality of the other.

"I have thought over what you have said. I can't be of any further use to you I am afraid, except to tell you that I believe it is worth while to assist this—this integration to take place. One cannot foresee the chances of life, but they are unlikely to be as adverse to you as they were to us. Besides, even in our case I think—I think what took place between us was worth while."

"Tell me this—just tell me this one thing more," Carol entreated, "before they come. Why did you help me? I thought when you saw me first—your eyes looked—couldn't you have killed me?"

"Quite easily," the first Mrs. Endiscott said drily dicott said dryly.

Katherine And Bob Were All Washed Up

Once more she rose and went to the door. This time Carol too heard far away the click of nailed boots upon the icy path. Mrs. Endicott left the door ajar so that no time need be lost in carrying the stretcher, then she moved back behind Carol's mattress to where the light would not fall upon her face.

"The reason I didn't kill you," she said quietly, "was because you were another human being—and an injured one. Now I could add another reason. You are a good girl in your way. I think that you may help Bob if you are true to him."

Carol heard he husband's voice. He came in with that great swinging stride she loved, but as he reached her side, he was brought up short by the sight of the figure standing behind her.

"Katherine!" he exclaimed.

He said the first Mrs. Endicott's name in a most curious way, as if he knew that he belonged to her and wondered what she was going to do about it. She did nothing.

Carol was not again aware of her except as an unstumbling presence, walking in rhythm with the guide who helped her carry the feet of the stretcher.

When they reached Sauerfeld and stopped at the door of the hotel, a crowd gathered around them. Without either Carol or Bob having seen what happened, the first Mrs. Endicott exchanged her burden with an onlooker, and slipped away unnoticed.

When Carol found herself at last alone with her husband, soothed by morphia, safer and warmer than she had ever felt in her life she pressed her head against his shoulder and began to cry.

"Bob," she whispered through her easy tears, for it was quite impossible to feel very unhappy when she was so perfectly comfortable. "Bob, oughtn't you to go back to her?"

Her husband lay stetched out beside her on the bed, he stared down at her golden head in the crook of his shoulder.

"That's nonsense," he said in an odd thick voice, "there's nothing to go back to. Besides Katherine wouldn't take me. I broke up everything."

"But did you, did you really?" Carol protested, forcing him to meet her eyes. "When you said 'Katherine' I thought it sounded as if you still belonged to her?"

"Well—yes" her husband admitted, speaking as if each word he uttered hurt him with a separate hurt, "in a sense I suppose I do belong to her. It's difficult to explain. You can't go through—all that—and get rid of it in a moment. Besides we suited each other. We both had strong wills and we fought a lot—but we respected each other—it was a real marriage! What there was of it is hers—not mine any more. I lost it; but I haven't lost that feeling that I'm hers still—if she wanted me. What I've lost is her. She hasn't lost me! Do you see what I mean?"

"Yes," Carol whispered. "I hate to—but I see it — I see it—because of knowing her! If I'd known her before—well then—it couldn't—any of it—have happened. But—but it has happened! Bob, I am yours!"

"You are mine," he said, holding her closer, "and as far as I am concerned you always will be mine. Still if I'd come on a man—that you had chucked me for—freezing to death in a ravine, I'd have let him freeze!"

"You mean—she loved you best? Better than I do? Better than you love me—or ever loved her? Is that what you mean, Bob?" Carol persisted, her lips against his throat.

He gave a long hopeless sigh, half sob, half laughter.

"I'm damned if I do know altogether what I mean," he admitted, "but if I didn't believe we could find together whatever it was I lost when I lost Katherine—if I didn't believe you'd help to find it—well then—lying here with you in my arms—I'd envy Katherine out there all alone!"

UNROLL THOSE BONES!

Here are three dice whose faces are identically marked, shown in different positions. (Or, if you prefer, three views of a single die.)

Compare any two at a time, and you will be able to answer the questions below, about the sides that you cannot see.

1. What symbol is opposite the cross? ....
2. What symbol is opposite the circle? ....
3. What symbol is opposite the star? ....
4. What is on the under side of Fig. 1? ....
5. What is on the under side of Fig. 2? ....
6. What is on the under side of Fig. 3? ....

HINT: Observe any symbol showing on two sketches and note the four other symbols which touch it.

Then the one which does not touch it must be the one on the side opposite.

Solution Monday.

ANSWERS TO YESTERDAY'S PROBLEM, GREEK FRET:

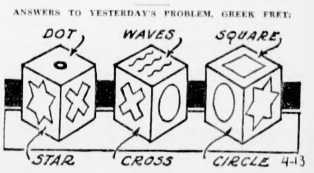

Fig. 1 Fig. 2 Fig. 3

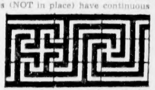

Observing that the upper tile (in place) has a continuous black line along the top, and that two other tiles (NOT in place) have continuous black lines along the top, it is reasonable to assume that these two belong in the upper row.

Similarly, observing that the lower tile (in place) has a continuous line along the bottom, and that two other tiles (NOT in place) have continuous lines along the bottom, it is also reasonable to assume that these belong in the lower row.

Acting on these two assumptions (which happen to be correct), you can work out the rest of the design by the trial-and-error method, to produce the finished Fret shown above.

K. O. CAVALIER

By Jerry Brondfield

CAST OF CHARACTERS

VAL DOUGLAS, girl sports writer, shipped on a freighter to find excitement.

EDDIE CAVALIER, a prize fighter headed for the title, has a score to settle with Val.

CAPTAIN STEVE HANSEN, skipper of the Northern Belle.

DUFFY KELSO, Cavalier's manager.

YESTERDAY: Val tries to thank Eddie for saving her, but he remains cold. She even offers to release him from the crew when the ship makes port. Back in San Francisco, Promoter Sam Golden is trying to explain to sports writers, when word comes that Eddie's opponent has sprained his ankle.

CHAPTER XVI

THERE was mild commotion in Sam Golden's office when the promoter made his announcement. They leaped upon him at once. When . . . how bad was Massini hurt . . . would he be able to fight . . . what did the doctor say . . .?

Sam held up his hands in an effort to stop the torrent of words that were being fired at him.

"Boys, boys, give me a chance to breathe," he pleaded. "It's bad. The docs say Massini went and twisted one of them fancy ligaments, or something, and he won't be able to fight for maybe two months."

Sam mopped his bald head again. "And with that advance gate," he moaned, "this is gotta happen to me."

They were relentless. They had to have a story. One of them already had a death clutch on the telephone to call his paper.

"I can't cancel," Sam wailed. "I can't. I'll never get Cavalier here again."

Suddenly he rushed to the phone. "Wait! I got an idea. I'm gonna call the champ. I think I got an out."

Sam was lucky. In five minutes he was talking to the champ's manager in New York. When he was through he slumped back in his seat, completely spent.

"Well, boys, here it is and it's a swell yarn, too. We're bringin' in Corky Briggs from Chicago. He's available and in shape. An' what's more, the champ says he'll give Cavalier a whack at him if he beats Briggs."

"Jumping Jupiter!" one of the reporters howled. "Corky Briggs isn't a middleweight any more. He's been fighting as a light-heavy for three months now and he's climbing fast!"

Sam shrugged. "I know it, but what can we do? I ain't got no alternative. So Cavalier'll have to give away eight, nine pounds, or so. It's his business, not mine, if he wants that title shot."

He looked at his watch. "That mud scow of their gets into Prince Rupert in a few hours. I'm gonna wire Duffy now he should call me just as soon as he gets ashore. Now scram, you guys, and let me have my headache in peace."

They left him with a rush and Sam Golden reached for the remnants of the bottle of whisky.

Sparks sent Sam Golden's wire down to Duffy Kelso a couple of hours later.

"Call me immediately you find a telephone," he read out loud. "That sounds like Sam Golden." Duffy said. "He must be up in the air like a kite, only higher."

Duffy stared at the message again, suspiciously. "I don't like the smell of this," he said.

"Well, the nearest telephone is still three hours away. Meanwhile, keep your blood below the boiling point," Val advised him. "You might want to get up a full head of steam later when you put your call through."

"What's up, do you wonder?" Pop asked her when he got her alone. But Val had no better idea than they did.

It was late afternoon when the Northern Belle nosed slowly up the channel toward Prince Rupert. "We'll be picking up a pilot soon," Val observed. They were leaning against the rail up forward, letting the cool breeze fan back into their faces.

"How long before we dock?" Eddie asked.

"Couple of hours at least." She looked at him sideways. "Can't wait until you rid yourself of us, can you?"

He shrugged and stared at the curling wake of white which spewed away from the bow.

"It was your offer, remember. What do you expect me to do under the circumstances? Duffy probably will weep out of sheer happiness."

He had something there, she admitted to herself. What did she expect? Could there be any earthly reason why he'd give up a quick trip back to San Francisco instead of a four-day voyage.

Was that what she wanted?. That was a troublesome thought, too. She stole a glance at the dark, rugged profile beside her. There was something slightly incongruous about it. That sensitive mouth, maybe. Eddie Cavalier didn't have the mouth you'd expect to find on a boxer. Strange she should be catching herself thinking of little things like that.

So she let her mind wander a bit. She thought of some of the other men she had known. A couple of them she had liked. There was Marshall Kendall. Handsome, impetuous Marshall Kendall who didn't have to work a day of his life if he didn't care to, but who was haphazardly trying to learn the brokerage business. Marshall and his house on Long Island and his yacht.

There was Rodney Blair, a human dynamo if ever there was one. So wrapped up in his law business that he had no time to relax. She could like Rodney Blair a lot if only he would unbend a little more. He had already asked her to marry him.

Yet she knew she could never fall in love with either Marshall or Rodney. She couldn't ever marry a type, and that's what they were. If and when she did fall in love it would be with someone more refreshing. Someone with purpose and spirit.

The question formed in her mind without her being conscious of it. Someone like Eddie Cavalier? No, she told herself, it could hardly be Eddie . . . could it?

But when he spoke, suddenly, at her side she started visibly. "I guess we're picking up the pilot here," he observed. He was right. In a little while they were in Chaltham Sound and nosed toward their dock.

The gangway had hardly been moored fast when Duffy Kelso was scrambling down. Pop Grimes leaned on the rail and watched him. "He'll fall flat on his face, sure," he said dryly. "I almost did when I stepped on land after my first sea trip."

But Duffy made it without accident. He found a waterfront restaurant with a pay station and put his call through.

Duffy Kelso ran all the way back to the ship. He was raging and sputtering so much he could hardly talk.

First thing Pop did was remove the cigar from his mouth. "Maybe this'll make it easier," he said.

"We been jobbed again!" Duffy screamed. He told them what had happened in San Francisco.

"That's bad," muttered Pop. "I dunno whether we can give way pounds like that—especially to a tough one like Corky Briggs."

"We ain't got no choice," Duffy said. "C'mon, we're gettin' back to Frisco in a hurry."

"Just a minute," Eddie said quietly. "I've changed my mind. We're going back to Frisco the same way we came."

Large Program of Building Starting For Spring Season

Spring weather has hit Edmonton with a sudden wallop, after a mild but draggy winter, and with spring the rush to build and beautify is starting. The season is always a renovation and painting period but this year a program of new construction seldom seen at such an early date is under way.

While commercial and government building projects in the city, both projected and in progress, call for construction to cost approximately $1,113,005, there are building permits for some $60,000 new homes, alterations and extensions to present homes.

Projects for the Edmonton district at the present time show a total of $353,000 in new construction, bringing the grand total for Edmonton and district to $1,526,000.

Work has started on the excavation for the Avenue theatre, which is being erected by a city syndicate at 109 street and Whyte avenue, while a second theatre in the Garneau district, to be called the "Garneau," is being erected by Suburban Theatres Ltd., at 8710 109 street.

Tenders for construction of 15 buildings for the air training centre at the airport are expected to be called any day and this work is estimated to cost at least $300,000.

Plans for the Federal building are being completed by the Edmonton firm of [illegible] and Magoon, and it is anticipated this work will be undertaken soon after the spring break-up.

New trees from old

When cleft grafting proves successful the result is new fruit trees from old. The finishing steps in this type of grafting is as follows: After the scions are placed in the split stock the chisel should be carefully removed so as not to disturb the contact of the scions with the vital cambium layer of the stock itself. Usually the stock will grip and hold the scions in place, but it is advisable to bind the graft with twine, cord or tape.

Figure 1 of the accompanying Garden-Graph shows the final step in finishing a cleft-graft. The entire graft, from top to well below the split in the stock, is painted over with grafting wax to make it tight against air, water, insects or disease [illegible].

Figure 2 shows the graft six months later, with both scions alive and reaching out in leaf. If both scions grow remove the weaker of the two the following year. Any water sprouts or "suckers" that develop below the scions should be cut off.

Dominion Head Business Women Speaks To Edmonton Club At Supper Party On Friday

LEAVING with her listeners a ringing challenge to oppose as a body of business women, all forms of exploitation of women in business and all movements that might serve to lose for women the ground they have gained in the business world in the past few years that might arise as indirect results of the present war, Miss Margaret Clay, dominion president of the Canadian Business and Professional Women's Club, spoke to members of the Edmonton branch on Friday evening.

Miss Clay, whose home is in Victoria, is making a tour of Canadian club and members of the Edmonton club had the honor of entertaining her during her stay in Edmonton on Friday. The affair was a buffet supper party arranged in the drawing room of the Macdonald hotel on Friday evening when upwards of seventy-five members were present.

COMMON AIMS

Reiterating for the inspiration of the members, these common aims of interest and enterprise that bind the various branches of the club to the parent organization across the country, Miss Clay pointed out that in times of stress like the present women must see that the progress they have made through united and intelligent work must not be lost.

Women stand shoulder to shoulder with men, both at home and abroad in this conflict, she said, and will take a large and necessary part in the struggle in the months that lie ahead. If women prove their right to participate in an attempt to save all that the freedom-loving nations in the British Empire hold dear, they will also prove their right to a place in equality to that of men in similar businesses in the "after-the-war" world of business.

DOMINION HEAD

It is, then, for the club members who hold the interests of the business woman at heart, to see that she will hold her dignity and place in the business world as heretofore. This can be done by united effort and constant work, she said.

UNDERSTANDING

She pleaded, too, for greater understanding between the clubs. "The west must interpret the west to the east, the east to the west, if the club is to be strong," she said. Much valuable work can be done through club sponsorship of worthwhile projects. Whether that work will be among members of an individual club or among the clubs in the federation will be determined after the visit of Miss Clay. Suggestions were offered by members of the club attending, as to how the federation might best serve the country at this time, both in home circles or as a federal-wide project, working in conjunction with the Dominion government in supplying some definite need to the fighting soldiers or nursing units abroad.

Miss Emily Clever, president, welcomed the speaker and thanked her after her address. Seated with Miss Clay during supper were Miss Clever, Miss Margaret Thompson and Miss Mary Crawford.

Huge silver bowl filled with lilies and mauve-blue iris centred the supper table, from which guests helped themselves.

Now That Spring Is Here

By Nellie McClung

(Copyright Reserved)

The bright sun of Spring shows up the dust of winter in the curtains, and faded places on the wall paper, the finger marks on the windows, the cobwebs in the corners, and a fiery urge to clean and sweep and paint and burn sweeps over the heart of women everywhere. Soon the clotheslines will be full of [illegible] and the sound of the vacuum cleaner will be heard in the land. It is not so dramatic as the old carpet beater, but more effective.

When this appears in print, Spring will be rolling into action all across the country, and no more heartening time can ever come than these first bright days when the blue anemone decks the headlands and the meadow lark pipes his joyous song from a fence post and poplar tree. The cattle on the meadow lift their heads and listen, and know that the time of grass has come.

DRIVEN TO ACTION

There will be a tremendous amount of energy released this year, in a great cleaning, and a great planting, for the darkening skies in Europe and anxiety at home will drive people into action. It shows already in the increased demand for bulbs and seeds and garden tools.

This great creative urge, properly directed, could beautify the countryside and lift the faces of our little towns and villages. At this in-between season, the little places, stripped of a kindly mantle of snow, under which all deformities were hidden, appear sad and depressed in the merciless April sunshine. Many of them look like motherless children, with dirty faces, matted hair and fallen stockings. Papers blow down lanes and catch in fences—[illegible] are crooked and gates sag on broken hinges.

Much of this will be changed when the Women's Institutes get into action, but unfortunately there are no organized bands of women in many of these districts. Only one tenth of the women in Canada belong to any organization.

LOOK FOR TOURISTS

But perhaps this year there will come a stirring of civic pride, and Canada will get ready for company. There will be a tourist movement this year greater than we have ever seen, and preparations for this should begin now.

We could make our highways beautiful with annuals, the free bloomers, nasturtiums, bachelor's buttons, marigolds. School grounds, church grounds, community halls could all be made more attractive with a bit of care. Switzerland is not a rich country, but it attracts the tourist by its thrift and beauty. Every [illegible] its contribution of color, for the people have a love for flowers, not only in their own gardens, but beyond. The apple trees along the roads in France, whose fruit is free to any who wish to pick it, is another indication of the people's thrift and forethought. (Speaking of apples, I notice in The Edmonton Bulletin the suggestion that each school child be given an apple a day to use up the surplus.)

There is a little town in Texas called Lubbock, which for ten years has held the prize for the cleanest town in the state. There is not one millionaire in Lubbock, yet all are prosperous. People who go there, stay. In the last three years nearly two thousand new houses have been built. It has the lowest tax rate in the state, and the lowest electric rating from its own plant. The civic pride of the people has brought all this to pass.

STIR IN THEIR SLEEP

Canadians, I believe, are beginning to stir in their sleep, conscious of a new destiny. I remember twenty-five years ago hearing Mrs. Emily Murphy in an Empire Day address say that some day Ottawa might become the heart of the British Empire. The New York Times has put it this way: "One thing is already certain. Canada will become a more important part of the Empire than seemed likely only a few short years ago. Her selection for, and adoption of the Great British Commonwealth Air Training System, upon which the outcome of the whole war depends, ensures that. She is already the link between the old and the new world of Anglo-Saxon civilization. She may conceivably become its heart."

HIGH CALLING

Whether or not we are capable to assume this high calling in a despairing world does not depend on our money, our wheat or our minerals. It depends on our spirit.

Last month at the great missionary congress held in New York, a radio message was received from Holland's Queen, in which she voiced the hope that is in many hearts, that out of this confusion may come the still small voice of Faith which will guide us all into better ways. "May mankind learn to look through the eyes of Christ," said the Netherlands' Queen, "and by so doing, overcome all ideas, sentiments and conditions that keep men apart."

Technically, millions of people on this continent subscribe to this sentiment. We sing it in our hymns. We read it in our poetry. We even pray it in our prayers. A few days ago we listened to the Easter story. We heard the bells and thought about the Risen Lord, and in our hearts we knew that miracles might happen.

Christmas and Easter are times of refreshing, when something not of earth flows into our hearts to make us conscious of another and a better world; not far beyond the skies, but within us now—an Invincible Kingdom of the Spirit, in which all things are possible.

EBB AND FLOW

As I write this, it seems true. It is real and satisfying to me at this moment. But knowing what I do of life, and the deflections of the human heart its ebb and flow, the ecstacies of the mountain top, the gloom of the valley I know we must do something if we are to hold the glow in our hearts, which Easter and the budding trees have brought. So I went out and moved a peony root into a better place. It was shaded by a laurel bush and did not do so well last year. I have it in the sunshine now, where it will have a chance to grow and bloom.

I wish every child, whose little life is darkened could get a chance for growth like this! I am thinking now of the 9,400 little refugees in England looking to Canada for homes—little orphans of the storm, frightened little things whose eyes are full of fear. Canada could take them, feed them, clothe them, love them.

Right or Wrong About People

By DONALD A. LAIRD
Ph.D., Sci.D.

In many communities nowadays there is space to waste in the school buildings. In the big cities, some school buildings are not being used at all. In other places, many rooms are not used.

Dr. Laird

This is something which makes professional pessimists believe the U.S. is dying out. As a matter of fact, the less heavily populated school buildings mean nothing of the sort.

Here is the true inside information on this puzzling situation: When the American soldiers returned from the first World War, there was a marriage rush, the like of which has never been seen before or since.

And as night follows day there was a tremendous jump in births in 1920, when nearly half a million more youngsters were born than in ordinary years. The year before and after this also had an abnormal number of "war babies."

When 1925 rolled around school boards consequently were faced with around a million additional beginning pupils to educate. This required new buildings.

School boards didn't realize that this big bulge in new pupils was just a temporary situation, so they built far too many school rooms.

So you see, empty school rooms are a symptom that 15 and 20 years ago more school rooms were built than were needed for a normal population. They do not mean that the country is dying out, or that people are neglecting education.

As a matter of fact, a larger percentage of young people nearing 20 years old are going to school than ever before.

Don't be frightened about the future of the United States. Twenty years from now, there will be at least 15 million more people here than there are today. Although the birth rate is only half what it was 50 years ago, nevertheless there are still a couple million babies being born each year.

When diving, bearded seals of the Arctic region turn a complete somersault.

What Did the Man Give?

One boy was especially attentive to me, and soon we were both deep in love

TRYING her best to persuade her terrified young heart that the predicament into which she has gotten herself is only "a bit of a mixup," forcing herself to whistle as she goes frightened and alone through the darkest graveyard a girl's heart ever knows, is Phyllis Wat[illegible] years old. It is infinitely saddening to an older woman to read Phyllis' fluttered, gallant letter, to realize what she has done to herself and how long and bleak the years [illegible] be before she can emerge into the sunlight again—if ever she does.

"Two years ago my family [illegible] me to southern California to college," writes Phyllis. "I [illegible] warmth and palms and a sea in which we could swim in November, and it seemed [illegible] Paradise. Everyone was wonderful to me from the first, and many of the boys I met knew movie stars or had connections in one way or another with the film world, so there were exciting ventures such as would intoxicate any girl.

GIRL MEETS BOY

"One boy, whose sister is what they call a rising starlet, was especially attentive to me, and soon we were both deep in love. These were days of great happiness for me, and as we saw no particular reason for waiting until we were married to prove the genuine love we felt for each other we decided to ignore convention and be our own judges as to what we should or should not [illegible] we had many serious talks on the subject; [illegible] saying over and over that whatever the [illegible] he would [illegible] respect or love me more than he did, or regard me more as his promised wife.

"All last winter we lived in a heaven of our own making, but in June something happened that made me feel that we should be married for the sake of another person. Philip, however, felt that this would be fatal to his plans, and at his request I went to a private hospital where I remained for ten days, Philip coming to see me daily, sending me flowers, making no secret of his responsibility for the situation. When I was well I went home for the long vacation, Philip seeing me off at the train and promising to visit us that summer.

LETTERS EVASIVE

"His first letter was a terrible shock to me. It did not come for three weeks; I was half-mad with anxiety when it did come, and I [illegible] trembling with excitement. He wrote only of his work—he was working as an extra at one of the smaller studios—of the [illegible] of the people we knew, and told me to take care of myself and not take any bad nickels.

"After that he only wrote [illegible] again, although I used every device [illegible] my father's suspicions, to interest him [illegible] all failed. During the last weeks [illegible] I was ill and went to the family doctor, whom I can trust. He [illegible] the whole story at once, and told me that I may not be wholly well for some time, the doctor who looks [illegible] terrible dream to me. My mother died when I was three. I have no sister, no woman relative whom I can talk to.

"In September I returned to college and [illegible] Phil. I said I must see him, unfortunately beginning to cry as I [illegible] comforting cheerful way that of course I'd see him, and a few evenings later he did come, but he brought [illegible] wiches and separated without my [illegible] a long series of telephone calls and promises [illegible] ment that he could not come, until I realized that he almost didn't care whether he saw me or not. Sample Your Permanent: Have "Test Curl" Made

Debunker

THE MASON-DIXON LINE DID NOT DIVIDE THE NORTH AND SOUTH

It is commonly believed that the Mason and Dixon Line completely separated the northern states from the southern ones in the great debate over slavery. Some even believe that the line stretched from the Atlantic to the Pacific. This is quite fictitious, for the line merely marked out the boundary separating Maryland from Pennsylvania. As originally surveyed, it ran to a point 244 miles west of the Delaware River, and settled the boundary dispute of these two states in 1763. This was long before the slavery issue had arisen, and the Declaration of Independence had not yet been written.

"Who are those people who are cheering?" asked the recruit as the soldiers marched to the train.

"Those," replied the veteran, "are the people who are not going."

By ALICIA HART

Nobody expects the customer to decide what kind of early summer permanent wave she ought to have. She simply puts herself in the hands of a good, thoroughly experienced operator and lets him make all of the decisions.

The smart customer, however, does insist that a test curl be made, regardless of how many permanents she has had in that shop. Only after the results of a test curl have been carefully examined will any operator go ahead and do the rest of the hair.

"GUARDIAN EYE" CONTROLS HEAT

Meanwhile, the customer who likes [illegible] will be interested in the new [illegible] angles. "Guardian eyes" in some types of pads now allow the operator to determine just when effective waving temperature within each pad is reached, thus enabling him to judge exactly when [illegible] pad or other heater should be removed. [illegible] when a certain temperature is reached.

It is a mistake, of course, to tell the operator your hair has not been bleached or tinted when you know very well that it has. His method of winding and the amount of heat given depends on the texture and condition of your hair. Don't expect him to do his best work if he has to guess as to just what has been used on your hair and how long ago it was used.

GOOD PERMANENT NEVER LOOKS "FRIZZY"

The ideal permanent leaves the hair soft and silky with no split ends and no frizzed-up looking areas. It should be followed by a thorough cleansing and rinsing to remove permanent wave lotion odors which remain and to make the hair easier to wave and manage.

Remember, of course, that post-permanent brushing is just as important as pre-permanent brushing routines. Brushing won't harm a good finger wave and it will keep the hair and scalp in fine, healthy condition.

DOROTHY DIX Says:

Dear Miss Dix—I have been engaged to my fiance for five years. He never seemed to have much money to spend, although he was always working steady [illegible] salary and doing extra [illegible] spare time. He spent [illegible] her, with the understanding that one year preceding his marriage he would be permitted to keep his [illegible] that the time had come when he [illegible] him keep his money, as she had promised. So I have begun to do a little wondering. If he cares for me so much, why does he let his mother practically skin him alive at my expense? His excuse for giving his mother all of his money is that he owes her something. True, but doesn't he owe me something? Am I supposed to go on being patient until I die of waiting? I love him, but does he love me?

MARIE

Answer: No doubt your fiance does love you, but evidently he loves his mother better, and I think you will be very foolish to go on being patient any longer. Present an ultimatum to him and tell him that he will either have to cut his Mamma's apron strings or break the engagement.

Major And Minor Notes

By John Oliver

ONE after another the season's musical events are passing into history and soon the season as a whole will be but a memory. At the moment, however, eyes are turned forward to what promises to be one of the outstanding events in a busy and altogether successful year in the cause of music. This is the Edmonton and district music festival which will commence on May 7 and continue until May 10. A record number of entries last year, encouraged the committee to go ahead and hold the competitions again this year, when the provincial festival is being held at Lethbridge. Owing to delay in arrival of some of the music to be used in some competitions, the entry list, which was to have closed last Monday is being kept open.

John Oliver

KOMARNO, Hungary, on the Hungarian-German frontier, April 13.—Important German troop concentrations were reported yesterday from the Austrian side of the frontier, in the Bruch, Dermur and Meslash regions.

All hotels and public buildings in the area were placed at the disposition of the military command, the reports said.

Similar concentrations were said to be taking place in the Klagenfurt and Vilash areas in Carinthia.

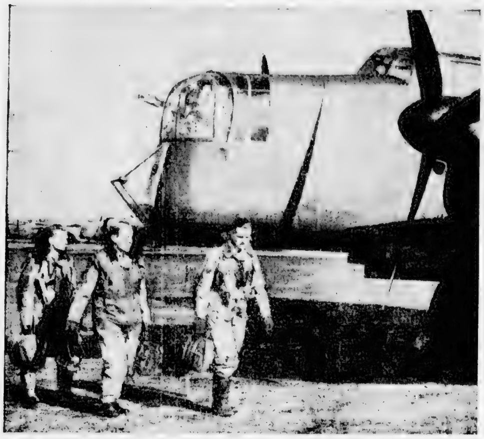
Airman From Edmonton In Pamphlet Raids



Tired but jubilant, British pilots and their crews returning from a leaflet air raid over Germany. On the right is Pilot Officer Bob Bisset, son of former Alderman A. Bisset, Edmonton barrister, and one of the heroes of these propaganda raids over Germany. These airmen are on their way to hot tea and English muffins and a third degree inquisition from officers of the British Intelligence Service following an eight-hour raid over German industrial territory.

Former Citizen Is Now Dropping Morning Mail On Germans' Doorsteps

Almost nightly from the peaceful countryside of Britain twin-engined airplanes roar into the sky from stations of the bomber command to deluge Germany with propaganda leaflets and give Hitler and his Nazi henchmen the jitters.

Day after day airmen of Britain and the dominions deliver the morning mail to German towns in the battle of nerves that has been waged since the outbreak of hostilities.

And a former resident of Edmonton, Roy Bisset, son of A. Bisset, city barrister and former alderman is one of the pilots who regularly take the route to Germany, sharing a common danger with his second pilot, a former wholesale fruiterer in New Brunswick.

JOINS IN 1936

Pilot Officer Bisset forsook prospecting for radium in the Northwest Territories in 1936 to go to England to join the R.A.F., and he has made rapid advancement in that famous force, and is one of the heroes of the "leaflet bombing" squadrons.

Aircraft from Britain began the leaflet "blitzkreig" in a flight over northwest Germany in September last. Young Bisset was one of the pilots in that show, and has been in on most of the leaflet raids since.

According to accounts of these raids the Gestapo must be working overtime if they are attempting to sweep the streets clear of leaflets before the population awakes as tons of the literature are showered down, and the pilots make sure that the mail is left on the doorstep of the towns they visit.

"When we first went over with leaflets we flew at a considerable height and had to make careful calculations to ensure delivery at the people's doorsteps," one account of a raid states. "Sometimes it would take two hours for the leaflets to reach their billet."

"Only occasionally did the Nazi air defences wake up to the fact that their morning mail had arrived, and at times we dropped down low enough to make sure that there were sufficient leaflets for everyone," the account of the raid continued.

BORING!

The chief difficulty in the leaflet raids is to overcome a sense of boredom, as the crews often remain in the air from eight to 10 hours in a confined space with their huge load of leaflets.

Community singing is the most popular way of letting off steam as the bombers cruise across Germany. Translating the leaflets into English is another pastime practiced by those who have a sketchy knowledge of the German language.

Nothing the enemy defenses can or have yet let loose has disturbed the nerves of these hard-as-steel young men whom nightly sweep over Germany or hover poised over German naval bases keeping incessant watch on the activities of German magnetic mine-laying aircraft at their bases at Sylt and Borkum.

But there is plenty of evidence that the two-fold mission of these night workers of the Air Force is having its effect on Nazi morale.

BOTHA, SMUTS SAID FATHERS SOUTH AFRICA

Bernard O. Schonegevel Addresses Audience At University

High tribute to Botha and Smuts as fathers of South African freedom was paid by Bernard O. Schonegevel, South African statesman now resident in London, in an address Friday night in the medical building auditorium, sponsored by the National Council of Education.

Dr. W. R. A. Kerr, university president, was chairman and moved the vote of thanks.

The lecturer said both Botha and Smuts had the English gift for sportsmanship and fair-play and the moment South Africa had been defeated by Britain they cherished no resentment and prepared to work in harmony with her.

Calling General Smuts, premier of South Africa, "the greatest man in the world," the speaker said Smuts was an authority on philosophy, a skilled botanist and a master of science who had been publicly praised by Sir Oliver Lodge, in addition to being a great statesman.

He added that with Smuts in charge of South African affairs in this war, there need be no fear of the loyalty of that country or its contribution to the Allied cause.

Ronald D. White, K.C., appearing for Molodianovitch, told [illegible] he would not put [illegible] stand. He also said: "I want [illegible] [illegible] that I am [illegible] professional [illegible] I am not a Communist [illegible] absolutely no sympathy whatever with these people."

Looking Them Over

Here And There

SAD news comes from down in Nova Scotia. The Cape Breton Island Colliery Baseball League seems doomed to fold this season owing to the war and one thing and another. This was one of the few remaining leagues where baseball still had hair on its chest.

Harry Grayson, special Edmonton Bulletin sport writer, sends through a vivid picture of this rip-snorting circuit.

It was principally noted as the champion of all umpires graveyards, says Grayson.

Formed in 1936 as an outlaw layout, the Cape Breton Colliery League entered organized baseball in 1937. A six-club league at the outset, with Sydney, Glace Bay, Sydney Mines, Dominion, New Waterford and Reserve Mines [illegible] sponge . . . for financial reasons. Then Dominion disappeared, making it a four-club circuit.

It was a short-ship circuit . . . all towns within a radius of 15 miles.

The casualty toll among arbiters was heavier in the colliery league than in any other diamond line-up. As many as 25 were hired, fired and chased in a season, although the staff consisted of only four at one time. There was a pronounced hazard for life and limb.

Umpires were mobbed and sent to hospitals. There were sticks and stones as well as names . . . fists and feet.

The league provided a getaway car and driver at each game, in an effort to save umpires from being taken apart. When storm clouds broke either during the game or at the close, umpires footed it for the getaway car, the driver having everything ready for a sudden exit through a special gate. Raw meat fans anticipated this strategy, however, and blocked the exit.

Edmonton Must Win Tonight or Pack Up

By JACK DEAKIN
Edmonton Bulletin Staff Sports Writer

WINNIPEG, April 13.—Smashing through the Kenora defence to capture the lead twice in the first half of the game, but faltering later as Kenora came through on power plays, Edmonton Athletic Club absorbed its second defeat here as the Thistles triumphed 6-5 at the Amphitheatre last night. The win placed Kenora one game in front in the best-of-five series for the Abbott cup and the western Canada junior hockey championship.

Tonight, as the teams play their second game in consecutive nights, the series can be decided by Kenora or prolonged to a sixth game by the E.A.C., and should E.A.C. come through in their final stand tonight then the last game of the series will be moved to Regina and is scheduled for Tuesday night of next week.

Play By Play

FIRST PERIOD

Young was sent to the penalty box for holding just as the game began. Kenora rushed right in and after pounding Kilburn's pads several times the Ontario boys found a hole with Milford scoring on passes from Dartnel and Juzda.

Kilburn was tested by Milford, White and Dartnel before Young returned.

McGill, end to end, beat Kenora, then Rayner outwitted him nicely. Edmonton were hemmed in again when MacKay was benched for boarding.

Melnyk was penalized for high-sticking and 17 seconds later Kenora lost another man when Juzda was benched for tripping. Athletics [illegible] Chad's boggot the defence [illegible] Rayner.

Both Milford and Dartnell were outwitted by Kilburn. The Edmonton goalie also shoved aside a sizzler from Juzda just as White returned.

KILBURN BEATS THEM

Kilburn, legs outstretched, robbed Hanson of what seemed like a certain counter. Then Kreller and McGill sped down but their attack broke up at the defence.

Kenora again proved worthy winners. The Thistles took an early lead, lost it and fell behind only to tie the score early in the second. Again the Thistles were one goal [illegible] with two goals late in the second. After that they forged ahead to climax their triumph in the third period on a withering power drive.

Penalties played an important part in the E.A.C. defeat. Kenora scored four times as Edmonton played shorthanded while the Edmonton team [illegible] Kenora players sat in the sin bin.

Chance to Even Series

WINNIPEG, April 13—Kenora Thistles, unable to organize power raids on the larger Edmonton ice, are right at home in the cramped Amphitheatre. For the second straight game the Kenora boys came through [illegible]. Thus Kenora is out in front in the series as the result of their 6-5 win last night.

The game was as close as the score reads. The teams battled evenly throughout and produced the best game of the series here. But penalties, 11 of them, which had Edmonton short-handed for 22 minutes, cost the E.A.C. its chances of a possible win.

Port Arthur Threatens Scalpers With Police

PORT ARTHUR, April 13.—Chief of Police George Taylor of Port Arthur announced today persons found "scalping" tickets for Monday's fifth game of the western senior hockey final here between Calgary Stampeders and Port Arthur Bear Cats will be prosecuted.

The announcement followed complaints that large blocks of tickets were obtained by individuals during the sale which opened Friday morning. All seats were sold out in less than an hour, and rink officials said thousands were turned away.

"The rink management claims the ticket blocks were sold to bona-fide representatives from paper mills and elevators," Chief Taylor said.

"If we find this unique position [illegible] immediately [illegible] evidence that any person has sold a ticket at an advance on the purchase price."

SCOTS SELECT M'DOUGALL AS SPORTS CHIEF

The Edmonton Highland Games association at the first general meeting of the year last night unanimously elected John C. McDougall to the honored office of president. Mr. McDougall, Edmonton born, is a son of the late John A. McDougall and has for many years been associated in official capacity with the Edmonton Burns club. In this organization he served this year as president.

The 1940 Highland games will be held on May 24th in the South Side Athletic grounds. This is the 10th annual meeting of the games at which all Edmonton has an opportunity to go "Scottish" and at which as many as 6,000 enthusiasts have been in attendance to witness on past occasions the popular varied program.

This sugary [illegible] presents a parade of record-breaking [illegible] the Highland dancers, the pipers and [illegible] Competitors in previous years have come from distances as great as Vancouver in the West, and Hamilton in the East, well illustrating the popularity of Edmonton's own games.

Other appointees to hold office in this association include T. H. Campbell as chieftain of the games. Mr. Campbell has been a leader in the games since their inception. Patrons are: Lt. Gov. J. C. Bowen, Mayor J. W. Fry, His Grace Archbishop MacDonald.

All prospective entrees in field and track events, in military tournaments, pipers and pipe band and Highland dancing will please take note that full information may be [illegible] by applying to the secretary-treasurer, Wallace Gove, Royal Bank of Canada, Edmonton.

IRATE NORSKI FLATTENS REF. IN RING SHOW

Highlights of Promoter Mike Crutcher's wrestling show at the Memorial Hall on Friday were a mighty swat on the noggin for Referee Pete McCreedy and mighty kick in the pants for Mike as Edmontonians stayed at home by thousands to listen in on the junior hockey battle at Winnipeg between the E.A.C. and Kenora.

McCreedy received his clout as a climax to the main event in which Quartermaster Sergeant Evans of Calgary was battling with Oscar Mossfeldt—a Norwegian who was in a particularly war-like mood. Evans won the first fall with an Indian deathlock. Oscar won the second with a Boston Crab.

As they cavorted around in the third stanza, Oscar decided that banged Peter a terrific swat over the top of his head and stormed out of the ring before the [illegible] had stopped [illegible]

Spotlighting the Sport Girl

IF NEWSPAPERS are the printed word of general public expression, we have failed to see or read a single line of what may be rightly called critical of the Grads in the United States amateur secretary-Edmonton Grads suspension controversy. There is complete unanimity on the part of both men and women sports writers in support of the Grads. So we take it that the public is entirely with us, and that Ferris, seated in a supposedly comfortable chair in his Woolworth building office, must have suddenly found a tack which pricked his official vanity. Somebody had to suffer, and why not Edmonton, thousands of miles away?

Comments we have seen would fill a good-sized scrap book and it will take a long time for readers to forget some of the remarks printed about this controversy. Ferris will have to do a lot of explaining.

Our readers will recall that the disbandment of the Grads organization was mooted months ago as likely to come with the 25th anniversary in June. But we wager our next week's pay envelope that this professional, Van Graflar, of Rochester, will claim that the whole thing results from his noble (from his standpoint) efforts to secure a game with the Grads.

A Toronto Globe writer states: "Ferris reminds us of the story of the little boy who owned the only football in the neighborhood and if the gang wouldn't let him play quarter-back, he'd take his football and go home."

Imagine the disappointment of the Des Moines girls basketball team which expected to be playing in Edmonton. Word comes from that city, dated Friday April 5, that they were still practicing there and several of the girls obtaining leaves of absence at that time still unaware of the Ferris order of suspension. They had expected to start travelling early this week.

The last word we could obtain from Edmonton (Canadian) amateur officials was that none of them had received any information re Mr. Ferris' suspension except the dispatches printed in the newspapers.

MANY basketball players in this city will recall Miss Elsie McFarlane on the Buffaloes lineup of last year and congratulate her on escaping with only minor bruises this week-end, when an auto, in which she was a passenger, turned over on a Calgary street after rolling along 300 feet from a collision and upsetting on the car tracks. From accounts reaching here she had a narrow escape from very serious injury.

Surely, the spring break in the weather must be approaching. Twice yesterday we passed boys playing marbles in dry spots on sidewalks, so engrossed that we were compelled to walk out clear around them. In three stores we noted sales of golf equipment being completed.

THE basketball game between the Gradettes and the Winnipeg Dominions this evening at the Normal school should be interesting according to a note from one of the former Calgary Buffaloes who writes that the Calgary team found the Winnipeg opposition much stronger last year than that of Edmonton.

Of course the lineups have changed from last year on all three of the teams mentioned and comment will have to be reserved until after tonight's contest, and maybe until following Monday night's second game.

WE find a note on our desk requesting mention that girls baseball for the soming season will be considered on Monday evening at the Bissell Memorial gymnasium on Boyle street, and that any young lady interested in this sport is invited to attend. There appears to be quite a few girls who prefer baseball to the new rules of softball ordered for 1940.

Personal. (Page Mr. Elmer Ferguson.) We learn that the former Lottie Oliver and Donna Reed, known in past basketball and sport circles, both have sons. Best wishes to parents and possible future athletes.

ONE of these days we are going to take time off to calmly consider the reports of this winter as to numerous breaking of various swimming records. The latest we have is that of a 13-year-old Indianapolis girl breaking the 200-yard breaststroke United States record. In how many years of this new record business before athletes will have a record even before they start out? We find the number of seconds given being constantly lessened.

And now Constance Balmforth is reported retiring from dominion fancy swimming after five championships to give someone else a chance. Mrs. Walton, badminton champion, is also considering retiring from some of her activities.

Dominion girls' hockey championship seems to be that of Winnipeg because it is the Preston team's turn to play in the west and to accept the gate receipts for expenses. Preston declines and it looks like a default championship to Winnipeg girls.

CAGERS MOVE DOWN TRAILS TOWARD TITLE

WINNIPEG, April 13.—A new Canadian senior basketball champion will be crowned on the floor of the eastern winner when the dominion finals roll around early next month.

Five provincial titlists await interprovincial playdowns but Victoria Dominoes, Canadian champions last season, are not among them. The British Columbians were barred from League competition this year after engaging in exhibition games with United States teams not approved by their provincial association.

Vancouver Maple Leafs will ride the playdown trail on behalf of the coast province this year. They took the honors by defeating Port Alberni in a two-game series last week which was featured by the outstanding work of big Joe Ross, who scored 29 points in the final game. He also scored 15 points in the first tilt.

The Leafs are slated to go to Lethbridge for a clash with the Alberta titlists, Magrath Lions. The two-game, total-point series will start April 17.

WESTERN FINAL

Victor of that round travels to Winnipeg to engage the Manitoba champions, Winnipeg St. Andrew's, in a best of five series for the western crown. The games will be played April 20, 22, 23, and, if necessary, April 25 and 26.

Since Saskatchewan and the Maritimes did not enter the provincial playdowns this year, the winner of the series in Winnipeg journey to the floor of the eastern champion for the dominion championship series. The eastern winner will be either Montreal Young Men's Hebrew Association or Windsor Alumni.

WINDSOR AGAIN

From a city whose teams have won the Ontario title 13 times in the past 14 years, the Alumni Club engage the Montrealers in a best of three series which opens tonight. A Windsor team lost to Dominoes in a thrilling coast series for the Canadian title last season and Alumni will rule as slight favorites to take the eastern crown despite the fact that all games will be played in Montreal.

Second game of the series will be played Monday and a third, if necessary, Tuesday.

DOGS

by P. Hamilton Goodsell

People sometimes possess fairly good pure-bred dogs without knowing it or even being aware of what breed their pets are members. There are a large number of recognized breeds with which the average person is unfamiliar, and it is quite easy to get a puppy which may later turn out to be a specimen of a definite breed if the person selling it or letting it go "for a good home" is unaware of its origin. Some of the better class pet shops have pure-bred pups of the more popular breeds for sale, their blood lines proved by registration certificates or genuine pedigrees, but it is exceedingly doubtful whether their proprietors would recognize a pure-bred pup of one of the less-known breeds.

Only by accident is such a puppy ever offered for sale in a pet shop. A female already bred may be stolen or lost and then while in the possession of the thief or finder, whelp a litter which is sold to a pet shop. The pups are sold as mongrels, or perhaps under the name of an unrecognized breed. No fancier of a little known breed ever disposes of pups for the small prices paid by pet shops since there is always the chance of disposing of young stock to other fanciers who know and like it.

Betting Still Favor Rangers to Win Stanley Cup in Sixth Tilt Tonight

TORONTO, April 13.—Manager Lester Patrick weighed his words carefully and all the followers of New York Rangers gave intent ear.

"There is just a possibility," Prof. Patrick said, straightening his tie, "that the Rangers will win the Stanley cup Saturday night."

The audience sighed.

"In that case," he continued, "the club's train will leave Toronto with the cup at eight o'clock Sunday morning and arrive in New York Sunday night. There is no reason why all you celebrants shouldn't finish celebrating in time to catch that train."

The Rangers meet Toronto Maple Leafs tonight in the sixth game of the best-of seven finals for hockey's world championship. Patrick predicted before the series started that his team, which went 19 straight games without defeat at one stage in the National League schedule, would dust off the Leafs in six games.

The men who make the odds insist by odds of 3 to 2 and 5 to 3 that the Broadway Blues will finish it tonight, and by 2 to 1 that they will do it in the limit of seven games anyway. They have captured the first, second and fifth contests while Toronto took the third and fourth.

PREVAIL DESPITE LOCALE

Those figures prevail despite the fact that the round is to be finished on Toronto ice, where it has gone on since the second game and where the Leafs have been defeated only four times all season. The odds stare the Leafs full in the face despite the fact they are better stocked with reserves than their opponents, who are leg-weary and carrying a couple of near-cripples.

A major reason is the fact that Toronto has consistently outshot the Rangers and yet has had to watch all its attacking power overcome by the brilliant goaltending of Davie Kerr and the swift breakaways of the rest of the opposition.

ALEX EXPECTED TO PLAY

Alex Shibicky is expected to be in the New York team again with a sprained ankle that left him in terrific pain at the finish of Thursday's fifth encounter. Phil Watson, the forward Manager Conny Smythe of the Leafs fears most, will start despite a three-stitch ankle cut he suffered Thursday.

Coach Dick Irvin and Smythe have not decided definitely yet whether to revert to the lineup that took the third and fourth contests. On Thursday they injected four fresh players—Billy Taylor, Don Metz, Reg Hamilton and Bucko McDonald.

But Captain Red Horner, Sweeney Schriner and Robert "Red" Heron are ready to go again and Jack Church, who played until Thursday with a severe hip and groin injury, is as well as he was when the round started.

If the Maple Leafs should win the seventh and deciding match will be played Tuesday. In any event, crowds of 15,000 are virtually assured for one performance or [illegible].

Montreal Seeks Allan Cup Series

MONTREAL, April 13—Should Kirkland Lake win the best of five series with Montreal Royals for the eastern Canadian senior hockey championship, the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association will attempt to have several games of the Allan cup final played in Montreal, president Art Lapierre announced last night.

Lapierre said he would discuss the matter with Dr. W. J. Hardy, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, when that body holds its annual meeting here tomorrow.

McLemore Settles Issue Of How Majors Will End

By HENRY McLEMORE

British United Press, Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

NEW YORK, April 13.—Not one single letter asking me NOT to pick the way the teams will finish in the major leagues this season has come to my desk. There hasn't been even so much as a postcard requesting that I refrain from making a forecast on the American and National League races.

After mulling this over in my mind I came to the conclusion that this lack of requests to layoff could mean but one thing: "That everybody in the country must want me to make a prediction on the sixteen teams."

You can't imagine how happy the arrival at such a conclusion made me, and I want to thank each and every one of you for the faith and trust you showed in me by such an unprecedented, nation-wide appeal.

Now before I start my selections, let me get everything in order. First, let me see if I can name the teams in each league. Well, never mind, I can always look them up in a baseball book. Secondly, let me try to remember how they finished last year. Well, never mind, that'll be in the baseball book, too.

Okay, let's start with the National League.

HERE'S HOW, PERHAPS!

Cincinnati will be first and St. Louis second, or vice versa. Brooklyn will finish third and New York fourth, or vice versa. Chicago will be fifth, Pittsburgh sixth, Boston seventh, and you guess who will be eighth.

Now, while you are running out to get your bets down, I'll collect my data on the American league.

The American league presented no such easy problem as the National where it was possible to definitely place each team in the spot it will occupy at the close of the season. The American gave me a lot of trouble and I must have spent close to $40 in collect calls to managers, utility infielders, groundkeepers, and professional eavesdroppers seeking information. But here is how I finally figured it out:

Yankees first and Red Sox second, or vice versa. Cleveland third and Detroit fourth, or vice versa. Chicago will be fifth, Philadelphia sixth, Washington seventh and you guess the eighth.

REALLY A SHAME

In a way it's a shame for me to give out this information. It [illegible] you go to the summer ball games. What can it possibly matter who wins or loses on a particular day because [illegible] I know what the [illegible]. As a matter of fact, I wouldn't be surprised if Judge Landis didn't ask me to stop making my selections on the grounds that the players after seeing my forecast, won't try as hard because they'll have a fatalistic feeling that what I prophesy must necessarily be true.

Take last year's forecast for example. Who did I pick? The Yankees. Many called me a fool and a [illegible] when I did it, and I'll admit that at one stage of the race when their lead was cut to ten games I had a qualm or two. The fact that I slipped up and picked Chicago in the National race last year was perhaps the exception to prove the rule.

Now that you know just what is going to happen in both leagues during the summer aren't you glad I picked them and you read it? or vice versa?

DECKS CLEARED FOR CITY GOLF

Decks are cleared for Edmonton's golf if the sun will just hang around and clear the snow off the courses.

The Edmonton Golf Association met on Thursday night and set the dates for all the competitive events under its jurisdiction. A. G. McKinnon was named honorary president with B. D. Kilburn in the president's chair, Charlie Smith as vice-president and Bill White again secretary-treasurer.

The city amateur goes to the Country Club this year with the qualifying round on June 15, first and second rounds the next day, third round during the week, fourth round on June 22 and the finals on June 23.

Efforts will be made to round up enough entries for a city junior championship. Inter-club matches for the McMullen trophy will be staged on May 5, 12, 19, 26 and June 2.

Last year considerable misunderstanding developed over the scoring for these matches so a definite scale of values has been established. Winning a match will count eight points. Winning the bye will count two points. If the bye is not played, it will be considered a tie. A tied match will count [illegible] each team. A tied bye [illegible].

The toll [illegible] pedestrians accounted for 12,470 deaths, or 38.9 per cent of the total persons killed during 1939.

Fungo Flies From Ball Camps

WASHINGTON, April 13—The Senators are hoping history repeats. A few years ago Brooklyn Dodgers turned loose Dutch Leonard, who came to Washington and became the team's best pitcher—a 20-game winner. Now the Nats have acquired Al Hollingsworth, another hurler the Dodgers couldn't see.

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky. — Manager Frankie Frisch of Pittsburgh Pirates has disclosed neither long John Gee, the $75,000 rookie, nor big Russ Bauers figures in his pitching plans at present. He named Bob Klinger, Max Butcher, Mace Brown, Dan MacFayden and Joe Bowman as his starting hurlers with Truett, Sewell, John Lanning, Dick Lanahan and Oadis Swigart assigned to relief.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—They've got a little matter of a city series to settle on foreign soil but Connie Mack and Doc Prothro have their sights fastened on Tuesday's openers and announced their starting pitchers today. For the Athletics it will be Lefty Louvill (Chubby) Dean against New York Yankees while the Phillies will start either Kirby Higbe or Hugh Mulcahy against Giants in New York.

CINCINNATI — Irked by the many cancellations Detroit Tigers have suffered because of the weather en route north, owner Walter Briggs is considering having the team remain at Lakeland, Fla., next spring until a few days before the season opens. Manager Del Baker planned to decide between Buck Newsom and Tommy Bridges for next Tuesday's starting assignment after today's workout against Cincinnati Reds.

BROOKLYN—Flatbush fans think they'll be seeing a preview of the world series today and tomorrow, weather permitting, when Brooklyn Dodgers entertain New York Yankees. Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yanks helped the illusion by assigning Charley Ruffing to three innings of service today as a warm up for Tuesday's opener against the A's.

Majority See Boston As Second Place Club

NEW YORK, April 13.—Those Yankees can't be so good. They haven't convinced 11 baseball experts they are any better than a second-place club. Of course, the other 66 writers taking part in the Associated Press poll on the order of finish in the 1940 American Baseball League race selected New York to finish first, but at least it wasn't unanimous.

It is pretty well agreed among the voters that the champions and Boston Red Sox will finish 1-2, meaning the Red Sox will be No. 2. Nine of the dissenters placed the Red Sox first, another likes Cleveland Indians for the top spot, and still another is putting a load on Jimmy Dykes by naming his White Sox as the pennant winners.

The Yankees piled up 6[illegible] [illegible] in the poll, based on [illegible] for first place, seven for second, etc. The Red Sox rolled up 536, 93 [illegible] than the third place [illegible] [illegible] Detroit had [illegible] only 14 points over the White Sox. [illegible] Washington, [illegible] eighth spots without much competition.

With the exception of New York, which nobody dared put below second, no club was named for less than four places, and the White Sox were selected for all positions but second and eighth.

Only one transposition was made in the order of the 1939 finish—the placing of Detroit over Chicago.

The Browns did pretty well in their bid for a unanimous last-place choice, but 10 voters picked the Athletics for that doubtful honor, and two others saw Washington as first in war, first in peace and last in the American League. One voter pushed the Browns up to sixth, and to more than offset Washington's two last-place ballots three voters picked the Senators to land in the first division.

Results of the poll, including the number of votes for each team for each place:

Minister Outlines Progress in Two New Industries

Two Concerns Are Writing New Page In Arctic History

Increase In Production of Turner Valley Is Highlight of Entire Industry in Past Three Years

By HON. N. E. TANNER

Year [illegible] closed with a record Alberta oil production of [illegible] barrels. The grand total since production first started in 1914 to the end of 1939 is [illegible] barrels. Of this amount [illegible] barrels have been produced in the last three years [illegible] crude oil produced from the Turner Valley [illegible].

Prior to 1937, total footage drilled over a period of years averaged approximately [illegible] feet annually. Following the discovery of crude oil in encouraging quantities in Turner Valley's limestone in June, 1936, drilling activity increased considerably as evidenced by totals of 291,599 feet drilled in 1937, 263,[illegible] in 1938 and 274,287 in 1939, the last representing a record year for footage drilled.

MISTAKES AVOIDED

Many changes have been made in the Alberta industry since major crude oil production first made its appearance in the valley. Gas energy needed to bring oil from the producing horizon to the surface has been conserved. Markets have not been flooded with more oil than they could absorb and consequently price structures have remained steady.

Information dealing with the great salt deposits of northern Alberta has been published from time to time. The area in which they exist underlies the town of Waterways three miles from McMurray. This well not only proved a commercial body of salt in the immediate vicinity but also proved the whole area as a definite field, for on different occasions other wells at some distance from the railway had been drilled which were productive of similar satisfactory results. Machinery For Proposed Mills May Make 1940 Biggest Year In History Of Mackenzie River Travel

Mining developments which probably will require heavy shipments of machinery and of supplies for large crews may boost to a new all-time record the tonnage transported in 1940 over the network of inland waterways lying between Waterways and the Arctic Ocean.

In 1939, freight totalled more than 27,000 tons but showed a decline of more than 3,000 tons from the 1938 all-time high. Water transport executives anticipate considerable improvement in business in 1940. The 1938 peak may be topped.

Already assured and certain to boost freight totals by many hundreds of tons is the construction of a hydro-electric plant to be undertaken by Consolidated Mining and Smelting company at Yellowknife. The contract calls for completion of the work by Bennett and White Construction company by the end of 1940.

NEW PRODUCTION

In addition, two, and possibly three, gold mines are expected to enter production this year or early in 1941. In either case, the probability is that large tonnages of machinery and supplies will be shipped north by rail and water for the mill installations.

These expansions in mining activity will reflect on the tonnages of supplies sent to the north generally to equip and supply subsidiary business lines and their employees. Developments in other less important phases of mining probably will add further to the freight totals.

Shipping these tonnages of machinery, food and general living supplies, and construction materials will be carried out this year over inland waterways, which were considerably improved at certain points by federal work in 1939.

WATERWAYS CLEARED

Completion of work on navigation channels on the Clearwater and Athabaska rivers, just below Waterways, is scheduled for this year. It is expected an early start will be made by the Commans Construction company of Montebello, Quebec, which has the contract from the federal government.

The work is designed to widen, deepen and make more permanent the channels at points which have proved tricky under low-water conditions. The past two years have been marked by lower water levels, and this has aggravated the difficulties. The situation will be remedied by the channel dredging and clearing operations.

Whether further improvements will be made on other sections of the waterways this year is not known. Some have been sought, but no announcements have been made by Ottawa.

FUTURE UNCERTAIN

Officials of Northern Transportation company and Mackenzie River Transport, the two main companies, and of other firms in the north have made no announcements yet about the possibilities of additions to their fleets during the current year. Northern Transportation last year added several new boats of special design.

Other companies prominent in northern water transport are Yellowknife Transportation company, MacInnes Products corporation and McLeod Bros.

Preparations for the 1940 navigation season are expected to begin in earnest in a few weeks. Crews soon will start moving northward to open the shipyards and overhaul boats and equipment in preparation for the start of navigation. Normally, this is around mid-May on southern sections of the water routes. The mild winter, however, has pointed to the possibility of an unusually early break-up throughout the northwest.

Water transport in the north plays a vital role in development and in addition provides employment for hundreds of men, indirectly benefits Edmonton by equipment and supplies purchases, and adds considerable atmosphere to northern activities. It is the oldest major phase of north transport development.

EAG EXPECTING DIAMOND DRILL NORTH CLAIMS

Company Has Done Assessment For Full Title To Holdings

Edmonton Athabasca Gold Mines, Limited, expects to carry out a diamond drilling program this summer on its holdings of 800 acres of gold and nickel claims at Goldfields, on Lake Athabasca, it was learned from E. H. Molstad, president.

Mr. Molstad, who has been active in northern mineral development since the Lake Athabasca field first was opened in 1935, states that the company has done sufficient assessment work on these properties to obtain full title.

"We expect to send a party of men to the field [illegible]," he said.

The company also has acquired an interest in a large group of gold claims at Pensive lake, in the Yellowknife area, Mr. Molstad announced. Development will proceed on these properties.

Of the Goldfields holdings, comprising 15½ claims, seven are right at the townsite and eight and a half are about two miles to the east.

"The whole field looks extremely good," Mr. Molstad said. "Development is going ahead and there are rumors that Athona is to build a large mill at Goldfields this summer and that Dome is putting in a mill near Pensive Lake."

Associated with Mr. Molstad are J. R. Gadoury and A. J. Maure, directors of Edmonton Athabasca Gold Mines, Limited.

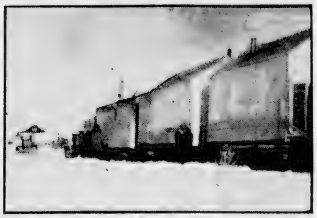
ASSOCIATION DOES EXCELLENT WORK FOR PROSPECTORS

Prospectors of the northland further their interests and maintain contact with each other through the Northwest Prospectors' association, which was formed about four years ago in Edmonton.

Since he rejoined the R.C.M.P. for war service, President J. D. Nicholson has tendered [illegible] resignation to the executive and the activities of the association are being directed by the directorate. This body includes John Munro, M. L. Ryan, Ray McPhie, T. Haggerty and O. Inkster.

Due to a curtailment in prospecting activity last season, activities of the association were reduced. Whether they will be expanded this season will depend on the size of the expected extension in prospecting.

New Road to North



The huge tractor train of bunk houses, cook house and equipment carriers is shown above, photographed at Lower Hay River Post, N.W.T., where it arrived on February 17, after completing construction of the winter freight road from Grimshaw, Alta., to Hay River. Freight will be taken in over this road to northern mining fields. There was little cold weather and no sickness among the men on the whole trip. Eight bridges were built on the whole road, the largest with a 26-foot span. The banks were cut on all river crossings. Hans Eggli was foreman in charge of the work. The crew found little work to do on return trip. A second return trip under the foremanship of Russ Way has just been completed.

From the earliest days of the missions in the far North, Edmonton has been the supply centre due to its proximity to the great rivers and lakes which exist in the Yukon and Northwest Territories. The advent of the railway and the airplane, and elaborate boat services on the rivers and lakes, have but accentuated Edmonton's position as the logical supply centre for the whole Northern area.

Camsell Reviews Mining Development in Northwest

Federal Director Mines, Resources Tells of Progress

By DR. CHARLES CAMSELL

(Federal deputy minister of mines and resources, and commissioner, N.W.T.)

In these days of rapid transportation we should perhaps take a lesson from the Indian aborigines of this country and measure our distance not in miles but in days of travel—which after all is a fairly logical procedure since it allows due weight to the difficulties of the way. Measured by this scale the North West Territories this year have approached to within one day of the centres of population in eastern Canada. It is now possible to leave Toronto by Trans-Canada Airlines on the evening of one day and have a late supper on the shores of Great Slave Lake on the next.

One who, like myself, passed his early years in a north that was geared to the century-old routine of the fur trade has difficulty in realizing the changes of the last few years, when distances that in the past represented months of travel and hardship are now only a matter of a few easy hours of comfortable travel by air.

The past year in the North West Territories has been remarkable in a number of ways. The completion of the Grimshaw-Hay River road has made it possible for the first time to deliver freight by tractor to the mines and opens up the possibility of winter shipment of [illegible] and concentrates and of the fish and furs of the northwest.

PRODUCTION HIGH

The territories now appear as a substantial producer of gold. With a production for the first [illegible] of the year of 20,821 [illegible] $732,120, they [illegible] the oldest gold producers in Canada, Yukon and Nova Scotia. The year has [illegible] directed activity [illegible] development and several properties are indicating results which should bring them into production in the not distant future.

In other cases showings have been such as to indicate the ore is not sufficiently rich to overcome the differential in working costs despite substantial reductions in the freight rates and a lower price for fuel oil, and the operations for the moment have been abandoned.

Fall in the price of silver within the last few months has had a discouraging effect on silver mining in the Great Bear lake district and disturbed world conditions have slowed up the influx of capital into new enterprises with the result that development and prospecting have not been as active as in the last few years. Furthermore, many prospectors and [illegible] outside with the [illegible] serving their country in another way and on another front. Viewed as a whole the year has been one of definite progress with two new mines in production and several other approaching that stage.

NEW MARKETS

As an ex[illegible] of the Northwest Territories as a market for [illegible] be made that [illegible] meat and other [illegible] last year were shipped [illegible] ated score [illegible] for winter supply. This [illegible] dependence [illegible] local [illegible] game and fish of the [illegible] to [illegible] the country.

One of the novel developments of the year, and one which is perhaps unique, is the inauguration of the "flying post office." Pilots of one of the air transportation companies have been empowered to issue money orders and transact other postal business on their visits to camps and areas where postal facilities have not yet been provided.

Reindeer herd at the Mackenzie delta now numbers more than twice its original size. Eskimo already have been given training in herding reindeer and last year some 900 animals were turned over to native keepers. This was done on the understanding that a herd of the [illegible] some [illegible] should be retained eventually and that [illegible] ed if at any time there is [illegible] of [illegible] of the [illegible] If [illegible] of Alaska [illegible] this importation of reindeer should within a few years provide a useful source of food for the native population and may eventually lead to the establishment of a [illegible] industry on the Arctic prairies.

TRACTOR ROAD

During the past winter a tractor road was cut through from Grimshaw in the Peace River district to Hay River post on Great Slave lake, a distance of 400 miles, of which [illegible] miles were in Alberta [illegible] The whole project cost in the vicinity of $40,000, of which $41,[illegible] was expended in Alberta. The [illegible] the Alberta [illegible] sections of the road.

Four geological parties were in the field this year in the territories. Two were engaged in detailed geological investigations in the Yellowknife and Gordon lake districts and two others on work of a more reconnaissance character in the Snare river and Wray lake areas. A new departure is contemplated this year in the publication of a report on the mining situation in the territories comparable to that made for some years on mining developments in Yukon. Owing to the international situation it was necessary to cancel air photography in the territories this year.

There appears at times to be some misconception regarding the cost of developing mining properties in the north. The [illegible] freight from the [illegible] is a heavy one but [illegible] a larger [illegible] these charges have been considerably reduced [illegible] development in most places. Overburden is either lacking or very light, the country is open or sparsely wooded, and both these conditions make for economy in the early stages of development.

COSTS ARE LOW

The case of the Ryan mine, which now is being operated in association with the Con property, might be cited. Here it is reported that the total cost of proving the property, including a considerable amount of drilling, amounted to only some $20,000.

Yellowknife now has an administrative council, two missions, five general stores and a drug store, and during the summer a liquor store was opened up under an arrangement with the liquor control board of Saskatchewan. A sub-mining recorder's office has been established for the convenience of prospectors. Four transportation companies have services to Fort Smith and Yellowknife and three air transport companies provide air services on schedule to the latter booming community. A recent report gives the district a population of approximately 1,000.

Considerable sums have been spent during the year on the improvement of docks and other transportation facilities. NEW CLAIMS STAKED

In [illegible] 1,343 [illegible] since January 1, 1939 [illegible] a total of 7,079 [illegible] in the Yellowknife area. During the year

D. C. CAMSELL

deputy minister of mines and resources for the Dominion of Canada, whose review of mining in Canada during 1939 appears in this special Mining Edition of The Edmonton Bulletin.

Wray lake, where 841 claims were staked, appears to have been the centre of interest. Other areas to receive considerable attention were Thompson lake, Desperation lake, Reserve lake, Blatchford lake, Tumpline lake and the Beaulieu river district.

Eldorado radium mine, the most important mining property in the Great Bear lake district, now is receiving the benefit of years of careful development. It is reported that during the year ending August 31, 1,100 tons of concentrates have been shipped out, from which radium and uranium recovery will exceed $4,000,000 in value. Reserves are increasing and an important new orebody is reported on the fifth level. The refinery at Port Hope, Ont., doubled its capacity in 1938 and has added radio-active lead chloride and radio-active lead oxide to its lists of products.

This Canadian development has brought about a decrease in the prices of radium from $60 to $20 or $25 per milligram, making it now much more readily available for medical purposes than was the case when the entire world production was in the hands of a Belgium monopoly. Industrial uses for various compounds of radium and uranium are rapidly increasing.

MILL SHUT DOWN

The B.E.A.R. mine at Contact lake operated its mill steadily until midsummer when the drop in the price of silver made it necessary to shut down for the present. This property has some showing of pitchblende and search for deposits in commercial quantities was carried out with an enlarged arrangement of the Geiger counter, an instrument used for the locating of small quantities of radium which have been lost or misplaced.

The Con mine has continued its production, which commenced in September, 1938, and is reported to have milled gold to the value of nearly half a million dollars in the first half of the year. Underground connection has been established with the Ryan property and the two mines are being operated as a unit. The Negus mine came into production in February and has since been producing at the rate of some $50,000 a month. The ore has come mostly from the upper levels but it is reported that further important orebodies have been opened up at greater depth.

Development is proceeding on the Giant Yellowknife and some 60 tons of crushed high grade ore have been shipped out. Although this property can be considered as [illegible] a prospect, encouraging results are being obtained. The Ptarmigan property (Daly-Jack), which is controlled by Consolidated Smelters, has been showing good results as development proceeds and is reported to be almost ready for mill construction.

NEW DISCOVERY

The Thompson-Lundmark on Thompson lake, some 35 miles northeast of Yellowknife, is the most important of the 1938 discoveries. The original surface showings are considered among the most spectacular ever discovered in Canada. A shaft has been sunk to a depth of 300 feet on the Kim vein of this property and shaft sinking

The British Navy

On the 22nd of July, 1805, Admiral Sir Robert Calder with a squadron of fifteen sail of the line and two frigates met and defeated near Cape Finisterre Admiral Villeneuve of the French Fleet and Admiral Gravina in command of the Spanish Fleet. The allied Admirals having twenty sail of the line, three fifty gun ships and four frigates. Despite this superiority Calder defeated them and captured two of their best ships. But that they escaped from a British fleet, howsoever inferior in number, without sustaining more severe loss than this was considered as a disgrace by the British public. Calder being tried by court-martial was actually censured for not having improved his success—a striking example of the height to which confidence in the superiority of the British Navy had been raised.

While Sea Warfare has undergone many changes from the Wooden Walls of Nelson and Calder, the victorious record of the British Navy since 1805 down to the Admiral Graf Spee and the resourcefulness, courage and efficiency of the Navy still remains to guard the empire wherever duty calls and sustain that confidence in its invincibility.

Electricity has made an important contribution in making the British Navy the efficient force it is today. It has also made life more congenial for the sailor.

Northerners' Shopping Bill Estimated at $4,000,000

Edmonton Gleans Benefit of Boom In Mining Areas

City Businesses Will Prosper As A Result of Activity In Yellowknife and Goldfields Districts

Northland's shopping bill for everything from personal articles to mining machinery this year appears likely to top the $4,000,000 mark. Most of that figure will be spent in Edmonton with great benefit to many types of business in the city. The figure does not cover expenditures for services such as transportation, communications, hotel accommodation and work of professional men.

L. E. Drummond, secretary-manager of the Alberta and Northwest chamber of mines, recently estimated the purchases of mining industry alone would approximate $3,000,000 this year.

Since that estimate was compiled the number of mill installations likely to be made in northern mines has been increased. This increase would boost the estimate by perhaps several hundred thousand dollars. Depending on number and size of addition mill installations, this would give a figure of $3,250,000 or more.

That figure is for the mining industry alone. At least $750,000, it is estimated, will be added to the figure by the purchases of food supplies, trade goods, personal effects and miscellaneous articles for the many northern traders, permanent residents and non-mining businesses of the north.

The total shopping bill, therefore, appears likely to be at least $4,000,000, and, if the north develops this year as expected, that figure probably will be exceeded. Just what proportion of the shopping will be done in Edmonton will depend on the percentage of machinery purchases made here. Practically all other items will be secured almost exclusively in this city.

It seems certain, however, that Edmonton's 1940 trade with the north will amount to a dollar figure, at least, not far below the estimated $4,000,000 of 1938—peak year to date. It undoubtedly will exceed the 1939 trade by a considerable amount.

SERVICE HERE GOOD

The goods, including foodstuffs, building materials, small hardware, clothing and personal effects, plus mining equipment, maintenance supplies and power materials, will be shipped north from Edmonton by rail, water and air transport chiefly, and some by road. The services provided by these four modern modes of transport are indispensable to the development of the north.

Northern shopping will reflect in numberless ways on the business welfare of Edmonton, which more and more as the years pass is proving its right to the title, "Gateway to the North."

Mining has taken first place as the phase of northern activity chiefly responsible for the shopping bill, and this year it seems destined to "boom." Fur trading, goods trading and a host of essential servicing businesses and industries contribute their share to the total.

NORTH MINING IS REVIEWED BY DIRECTOR

is continuing on a second vein, the Fraser, which was discovered last summer. Some of the ore is reported running as much as five ounces to the ton. The matter of a mill is being considered.

Dome Mines stopped work on its properties at Pensive lake and elsewhere in the district. It is reported that the ore encountered was of too low a grade to permit of profitable operation at the present time. Small mill owned by local interests was being installed at Pensive lake to handle the better class ore from the various claims.

The Gordon lake area was inactive during the summer. The suspension of operations on the Camlaren property has, in a measure, discouraged smaller operators. The Consolidated Mining and Smelting company has several groups of claims in the district and development, in its preliminary stages, was continuing on various properties.

MANY METALS FOUND

Discoveries in the 1938 fall in Wray lake area, 130 miles north of Yellowknife, attracted a great deal of attention to that district, which was the scene of extensive stakings. Authoritative information regarding the possibilities of the area is not yet available but it is understood that shipments of high grade ore in considerable quantities have been made. Last summer a new discovery was reported from Desperation lake, 70 miles east of Yellowknife, indicating the possibility of the further easterly extension of the mineralized zone. Other activities were reported from Tumpline lake, Mystery lake, and elsewhere in the Beaulieu river district, and from the Snare river country.

In the Great Slave lake region some other metals have been found in small amounts which may be of importance in view of the present demand for war minerals. Mineral ores containing tungsten, tin, tantalum, lithium and beryllium have been found by field officers of the department of mines and resources at Outpost Island and in the Yellowknife and Beaulieu areas.

Few or none of the actual finds would be of commercial importance, but the occurrences of these metals in this region suggest that further prospecting for these particular minerals is warranted. A trial shipment of 1,500 pounds of ore from Outpost Island showed, in addition to its gold content, 1.18 per cent of tungsten oxide and 20 per cent of tin.

ELDORADO EXPANDS

In spite of disturbed conditions and a slackening of mining activity the past year has been one of advancement. Eldorado has continued to expand its production and to its ore reserves. The Yellowknife, with two gold mines in production, can now be considered an [illegible] camp and work on other properties and in other [illegible] the widespread mineralization of the territories.

EXPLORATION OF BEAR LAKE AREA IS NOW PLANNED

Further investigations of the radium possibilities of the Great Bear lake area are scheduled for this year, according to [illegible] 1940 announcements. These will be made on radium properties, outside of those of Eldorado Mine Limited, the producing company on the shore of the big lake.

Geological re-survey and geophysical [illegible] miles south of Great Bear lake [illegible] planned [illegible] the backing of New York speculators.

John L. Donahue, representative of the New York group, said the geographical survey would be made with a commercial adaptation of the Geiger counter, a radium-finding instrument which already has been used commercially in the north at the [illegible] property of Bear Exploration and Radium Limited.

The New York interests have agreed [illegible] to finance the investigatory work and if [illegible] sufficiently encouraging to warrant further development, the financial backing for the development will have to be found.

WARFARE FAILS TO HALT FLYING IN NORTH AREA

Fears that the outbreak of war would seriously cripple commercial air transportation business in the mining areas of Canada's vast northwest have proved groundless so far, according to commercial airmen.

When the war clouds broke over Europe early in September, hard-rock miners predicted that many promising mines would be forced to suspend operations because of increased operating costs. Air transportation companies, majority of which rely on mining interests for their pay loads, tightened their belts and waited for the drop in revenue.

But the anticipated depression has failed to materialize, say the officials of Canadian Airways, Mackenzie Air Service and Yukon Southern Air Transport of Edmonton.

Surface mining gangs and prospecting parties have deserted the field in many districts, the bush fliers admitted, but this has been offset by increased activities in the major producing mines.

In some areas passenger service has improved with hostilities as Canada's military forces are augmented by rugged northern miners. This new source of revenue works both ways because new employees must be flown in to the mines to replace those who have enlisted.

The call of the Royal Canadian Air Force has been answered by a number of bush pilots and aircraftsmen. But this depletion in the ranks of experienced airmen has not impaired the efficiency of the bush companies.

Instead, the vacancies have allowed many youthful air aspirants to become full-fledged pilots and air engineers — positions which had eluded many of them in peacetime.

GOLD PRODUCTION FOR ALL CANADA AMAZINGLY HIGH

Production of gold in Canada during December, 1939, totalled 432,896 ounces valued at $16,666,496. In November, the output totalled 423,358 ounces and in December, 1938, 435,171 ounces. During the year 1939, the production aggregated 5,092,131 ounces valued at $184,071,490, compared with 4,725,117 ounces valued at $16,205,990 in 1938.

Output by provinces was as follows during 1939, with 1938 totals in brackets: Ontario, 3,088,438 (2,896,477) ounces; Quebec, 954,340 (881,263); British Columbia, 623,605 (605,617), Manitoba and Saskatchewan, 257,843 (235,727); Northwest Territories, 49,679 (6,800; Yukon, 87,760 (72,368); Nova Scotia, 29,943 (26,560).

TRAINING PLAN WILL EXPAND CITY AIRPORT

Unprecedented expansion of Edmonton's city airport and probably new responsibilities for Airport Manager Capt. James Bell will be the result of Edmonton's participation in the empire air training scheme, recent disclosures about Ottawa plans for training here showed.

The city some weeks ago informed Ottawa of its agreement to a proposal under which the federal authorities would take over the administration and upkeep of the airport, without interfering with established commercial [illegible].

Plans of construction [illegible] for the airport were [illegible] by the city early this month and [illegible] a huge program is contemplated. Oil Production Reaches New Heights in Northland

New Development In Oil, Salt Is Given by Tanner

Imperial Oil and Abasand Oils Open New Petroleum Fields In North West Territories And Country Benefits

Two important developments in fuel production will brighten the northern mining picture during the 1940 season. They are the start of production of Imperial Oil Limited, and the entry into commercial production of the Waterways plant of Abasand Oils Limited.

These two developments not only will have immediate 1940 value for northern mining, but also may prove the first steps in fuel developments that eventually will make the north to a large extent self-sufficient insofar as fuels are concerned.

Considerable importance for the north also may be attached to the B.C. government's decision to start drilling on the oil structures in the Pouce Coupe area. If the Pouce Coupe area should prove productive [illegible] the future [illegible] source of oil for northern mining.

NEW AGREEMENT

The production of aviation gasoline by Imperial Oil will be in pursuance of an agreement entered into with the federal government last May. Under the agreement, the government agreed to waive for five years its 10 per cent royalties on the Fort Norman production, and the company agreed to drill a new well and install a new refinery capable of producing aviation gasoline.

The company is to reduce the price of fuel oil to 13 cents per gallon from 17½ cents, and the aviation gasoline price to 37 cents from roughly 90 cents, the cost of importing the high-octane fuel. The 37-cent price is exclusive of the federal government's sales tax.

[illegible]

Smelting Company with fuels for its northern mining operations, the Abasand company is planning to begin commercial production early in April from the Waterways plant in which it has invested approximately $600,000.

Abasand will produce diesel and fuel oils from Alberta's northern oil sand deposits, which are said to have tremendous oil potentialities. The volume of production, it is understood, will be determined largely by the market.

Abasand has been engaged in the development of the oil sands for the past four years. The first two years were consumed in proving that oil production was possible from the sands on a commercial scale. Experimental production was successful in 1938, and since that time the company has been engaged in the designing and installation of a commercial-scale plant.

In the latter part of the two-year period the "running" method has been improved, and some changes made in the mining operations to implement this improved method and improve the efficiency of operations. Because of the complexity of the project, much time has been required to design and install the commercial-scale plant, according to company officials.

WORK FOR MANY

Max W. Ball is president of the company and Howard Stutchbury is assistant to the president. F. W. Sage, petroleum engineer, will be in charge at the scene of operations. About 75 men will be employed. The company also will produce "coke" fuel for the operation of the McMurray salt plant of Industrial Minerals Ltd.

The expansion of the Imperial Oil operations at Fort Norman will follow development work carried out last year at an expenditure of roughly $150,000. Previously, the company had invested $1,500,000 in the Fort Norman oil field, where oil was discovered little more than 20 years ago.

The development work of 1939, drilling of a third well and erection of the new refinery, is expected to give a capacity of about 880 barrels a day. Roughly 25 per cent of the production will be in gasoline of various grades and 70 per cent in fuel oils, the remaining five per cent lost. About eight years ago, the Imperial refining plant at Fort Norman had a capacity of only 30 barrels per day.

Imperial Oil first entered the Norman field in 1919 with exploration and in 1921 the first "still" was installed. For some time production was only sufficient to supply the company's own needs, but gradually it was increased until it could supply commercial demand.

As a result of the expansion last year, increase in storage capacity from 15,000 to 20,000 barrels will be necessary.

The entry into aviation gasoline production and boosting of the rate of output will be of great benefit to mining and aviation activities in the sub-Arctic. Transport and fuel costs are two expense items that have a most important bearing on Canadian sub-Arctic mining development and reductions resulting from the Imperial expansion will be most welcome.

In northern mining, reductions in transport and fuel costs can make the difference that will enable a company to develop an ore body, which under higher costs would not be sufficiently rich to warrant commercial development. The reduction will reflect favorably on other phases of northern life.

Ronald W. MacKinnon is manager of Imperial's Fort Norman work.

New Monarch Of North Sky

Pictured here is one of Yukon Southern Air Transport's three Barkley-Grow airliners which have brought a new kind of transportation to northern and northwest Canada. These luxury machines provide the same kind of comfort that air travellers have learned to expect on mainline service between larger cities. One of them is now under charter to Canadian Airways for use as a passenger plane between Edmonton and Yellowknife.

WINTER ROAD TO NORTHLAND IS BUSY NOW

Nieland And Harcourt Given Credit For New Route

To two men, Bert Nieland and Earle Harcourt, president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the Yellowknife Transport company, go the honors for discovering the only practical route and for operating the first winter overland freighting service from railhead into the Yellowknife district. Having firmly established themselves in water freighting the partners delved into the possibilities of a winter road to supplement their summer service.

[illegible]

The provincial government, desirous of maintaining Edmonton as the supply depot of the north, about this time was also looking for a winter road into the mining area and decided upon the Hay river route. A crew of brush cutters and road builders was dispatched to commence work at the Upper Hay River post. Harcourt and Nieland, having met with success in their promotional venture, proceeded to Grimshaw to put the first cat train together.

[illegible]

THREE SECTIONS

[illegible] 1939 [illegible] 24 hours a day.

The government road builders were overhauled within 50 miles of Upper Hay River post and for the 150 miles still separating the train from Great Slave lake all hands pitched in to the task of roadmaking. Finally, with superhuman effort, the lake was reached and once more man conquered in his constant battle with a relentless nature.

On April 12, 33 days after leaving Grimshaw, the first cat train pulled into Yellowknife, having covered a distance of 667 miles. A second trip has been completed and so has a third trip, from Yellowknife to Grimshaw. Improvements to the route will soon cut the time to less than 20 days and reduce the distance some 100 miles.

BOTH ARE PROUD

Harcourt and Nieland feel justifiably proud of their latest achievement, thus having opened and to date operated the only commercial winter service and both predict a constantly increasing tonnage will be hauled over the road.

Pioneering is not new to either of these resourceful men, who have been interested in the north and its development since the radium strike at Great Bear lake in 1931. Having had a fling at prospecting, mining and supplying mines with [illegible], they finally settled on transportation.

When Yellowknife gained prominence as a mining field the partners expanded their water fleet by adding a diesel powered boat and two barges. Constant growth has [illegible] with [illegible] another larger diesel boat, three gasoline and a total of seven barges [illegible] Mackenzie [illegible] Company [illegible] Mackenzie [illegible] Yellowknife [illegible] Great Slave [illegible] Yellowknife.

'Y' Works to Maintain Morale of Men Overseas By Giving Home Comforts

Tonight, in camps, barracks and in ships . . . in Canada and overseas . . . thousands of Canadian boys are facing the grim realities of war; living a life where there is no tomorrow; where every influence suggests it is only today that counts.

These boys went away full of faith and courage . . . will they return casualties to disillusionment and discontent or loyal, keen and willing to play their part in building a better Canada after the war? To maintain their morale is essential to victory . . . it is equally essential to reap the fruits of victory.

Rest periods, off-duty hours, leave . . . that's when morale can be strengthened or broken. Then they must have, more than in peace time, some home comforts . . . games to relax the body, entertainment to divert the mind, fellowship to lighten the heart and inspiration to renew the spirit during those few precious moments of relaxation.

FUNDAMENTAL NEED

To supply this fundamental need is the purpose of all Y.M.C.A. programs and service and the "Y" next week will make its appeal across Canada, in northern Alberta and in Edmonton for war services fund.

To finance its current activities, the Young Men's Christian association needs $1,038,000 which will cover a budget of 16 months, from the commencement of the war last September until December 31, 1940.

Of this money $541,250 is for services to troops overseas and $496,750 to troops in Canada.

$25,000 OBJECTIVE

The campaign in northern Alberta has an objective of $25,000 but the Edmonton Y.M.C.A. is combining its 1940 local autumn appeal with the war services appeal and seeks an additional $7,000 for this purpose. This combined appeal will be the only drive made by the association this year.

With City Boys

W. J. G. McDIARMID

Here is a man hundreds of parents, wives and sweethearts would like to meet. He is W. J. G. "Gregg" McDiarmid, Y.M.C.A. officer with the Second Infantry Division, C.A.S.F., who is quartered with the Edmonton Regiment and helps them in their leisure time. He has had years of active service with men and young men to aid him in his work. Prior to going to Aldershot, Gregg was general community work secretary in Montreal, doing work in a number of Montreal areas not served by Y.M.C.A. buildings. As director of Camp Kanawana, probably the largest boys' and young men's camp in Canada, he made a name for himself as an enthusiast in friendship.

MRS. JACKSON, JAIL MATRON, IS DISMISSED

Reorganizing his staff at Fort Saskatchewan jail, Warden J. D. McLean has dismissed Mrs. Juanita Jackson, a matron at the jail. Mrs. Jackson has been a member of the staff for the last 11 years.

Mrs Jackson's dismissal was contained in the following letter from Warden McLean: "I am reorganizing the staff in the women's department and this is to advise you that your services from this date are no longer required. Please find enclosed cheque covering period of time from April 1 to 5 and one month's cheque in lieu of notice, also superannuation cheque 269578 G."

A high government spokesman said that Warden McLean was left to administer his staff and any staff changes were made on his initiative and on his responsibility. No announcement of a successor to Mrs. Jackson has been made.

Other Y's Club Hears Address On South Africa

Weekly meeting of the Other Y's Club of Edmonton was held recently. The one-minute speakers for the evening were Les Duncan, Jim Maguire and Phil Arlidge, at the conclusion of which the guests of the evening were introduced—Don Laird, Norm How, Bill Thomson and Bob Thompson.

The highlight of the meeting was presented by R. J. Nell in his talk on South Africa. Members of the club kept Mr. Nell busy answering questions on his topic long after the close of the meeting.

It was announced that Dr. A. W. Hardy would attend the next meeting to discuss a service project for the club. This project will be underway as soon as final arrangements can be made.

Scholarships In Fine Arts School Now Announced

The art division of the Banff School of Fine Arts will make nine scholarships available this summer, it is announced here.

Each valued at $20, they may be used to pay tuition costs of students who desire to attend the school, to be held this year between Aug. 1 and 31. For the purpose of awarding the scholarships, the province has been zoned into nine districts, one scholarship going to each district. Cities of Edmonton and Calgary form two of the districts.

Competition for the scholarships will be open to persons over 16 years of age. Competitors will be required to submit any subject from a land-scape, still-life, or active life. Works may be of pencil, pen, charcoal, pastel, crayon, watercolor or oil. All entries are to be sent to the Provincial Institute of Technology and Art in Calgary, which along with the University of Alberta extension department is sponsoring the competition and school.

Alberta Society of Artists also will provide a scholarship to the amount of tuition fee at the Banff school, to be awarded to the artist whose painting is judged superior to other entries in the competition.

Junior Hi-Y Club Is Launched Here, Hiller President

The first meeting of the newly formed Junior Hi-Y took the form of a banquet held recently in the social room of the Y.M.C.A. All three chapters, Scona, Vic and Eastwood, were well represented with 35 members in attendance. The meeting was presided over by Art Hiller, president of the central council of the Junior Hi-Y.

Guest speaker of the evening was A. Porter, B.A., former managing director of the Boys' and Girls' Fair and a member of the Y.M.C.A. Boys' Work Board. Mr. Porter spoke on "The Launching of a New Venture." Greetings were extended to the gathering by Don Arnett on behalf of the Senior Hi-Y.

Hal Betts, Boys' Work secretary of the Y.M.C.A. and adviser to the club, spoke briefly. Mr. Betts was the originator of the idea of forming a Junior Hi-Y and has been more directly responsible for the successful launching of the club than anyone else. A sing-song opened the evening's activities and a quiz concluded the successful meeting.

Each member found at his place a beautifully designed place-card with his name and the club emblem on it. These place-cards were made by Ralph Allman, a member of the Vic chapter. From the glowing reports received from the chapter, the club is successfully on its way.

Members of the central council were in charge of the evening. Members of this council are: H. E. Betts, adviser; Art Hiller, president; Hadley Ward, vice-president; Burton Margolus, secretary; Dave Kushner, treasurer; and Ben Dlin, program chairman.

DEBUT RECITAL YOUNG SINGER IS SUCCESSFUL

Jerry Forbes Wins Acclaim Talent Highly Promising

One of the most promising young singers to be heard here in a long time made his public concert debut at First Baptist church Friday evening, in the person of Jerry Forbes, baritone. He is 16 years old and is a student at Westmount school.

The church auditorium was filled to capacity as the tall, unassuming, confident school-boy sang a program of full recital length and of great difficulty. The young artist—for that is what he is—was accorded a warm ovation—and deservedly so.

Young, fresh, promising voices such as that of Jerry Forbes, are heard all too seldom. The voice is naturally good. It is clear and with an appealing quality and added to the natural charm is splendid training as far as it has gone.

MAY BECOME TENOR

The young artist, a [illegible] baritone, is of the "high baritone" type and it would not be surprising if he graduates into the tenor class. In any case, at present his upper notes are far superior to his lower ones, a point amply demonstrated in his singing of the Toreador's Song from Carmen and A Bachelor Gay from The Maid of the Mountain.

Mr., or Master, Forbes has every reason to feel satisfied with and proud of himself.

But, while possessing a splendid voice, well trained and also the happy possessor of a natural musical and rhythmical sense, the recital was not without its flaws.

The Toreador Song and the Evening Star aria from Tannhauser perhaps would have been [illegible] until a more mature [illegible] music, there is no royal road to the point where experience a[illegible] take one. There were [illegible] when there was a throaty quality in evidence and some when intonation was questionable.

SPLENDID WORK

However, the splendid work done and the promise of finer things in the future was most satisfying and best wishes go out to the young man for continued progress.

His program was lengthy and exacting. Included were Mendelssohn's On Wings of Song; Fearis' How Sweet the Name; Tchaikovsky's To the Forest and None But the Lonely Heart, a Schubert group, Ave Maria, The Wanderer, Serenade and Cradle Song; Adams' [illegible] I, Love Without Thee, G[illegible] Caro Mio Ben; Handel's Where'er You Walk; Leoncavallo's Mattinata; Drigo's Serenade and the Irish numbers Ireland Must Be Heaven and Bendemeer's Stream.

Numerous encores were given, including Can't You Hear Me Callin' Caroline; Tit Willow, from The Mikado and others.

Henry Atack at the piano provided masterly accompaniments, buoying up the soloist, never intruding and always helpful.

The concert was in aid of the building fund of the North Edmonton Mission.

Mother of City Barrister Dies

[illegible] Ont., for burial. Mrs. Harvie was the widow of A. M. Harvie, of Orillia and Barrie, Ont., and had resided in Alberta for 20 years. She was born in Perth, Ont. Surviving are three sons: Mr. Harvie here; D. M. Harvie, Toronto; Eric L. Harvie, K.C., Calgary; two daughters, Mrs. William Ardern, Weybridge, England; Mrs. E. B. Alport, Regina.

G. WILCE NAMED PRESIDENT FOR VET ASSOCIATION

G. Wilce was re-elected president of the British Imperial Comrades Association at the annual meeting held in the Imperial Hall Friday night. About 50 members attended the meeting.

Others officers elected were J. Harris, vice-president; L. Grommers, treasurer; J. H. Faulkner, re-elected secretary; executive, Messrs. Willey, Wilson and Wilkes, re-elected; Messrs. McCurdy, Cooper and Wise, new members.

The financial report showed the association to be in good shape despite the many demands made for help. It was reported that a gratifying response had been received to the association's appeal for aid.

Denmark Invasion Is Now Affecting Bacon, Egg Prices

Off-truck bacons which sold at $7.50 a hundred-weight last week-end have already advanced to $8.

With British imports of eggs from Denmark cut off as a result of the Nazi invasion, two carloads of eggs were shipped east from the city this week in anticipation of an increase in exports to Britain. On Friday prices to farmers from wholesalers advanced one cent, although retail prices remained unchanged. Farmers are receiving 14 to 15 cents a dozen for Grade A eggs sold to wholesalers under the new price while the retail price for Grade A eggs remains at 20 to 23 [illegible].

Exceeding the speed limit was the cause of 38.5 per cent of the traffic deaths of 1939.

Cards of Thanks (6)

As a service to readers, the Edmonton Bulletin has prepared a booklet of correct wordings for "Cards of Thanks". It is free upon request. Call, write or phone for a copy.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many friends who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement, and also for the beautiful floral offerings. Special thanks to all members of the Fire Department, Doctors and Nurses at the Royal Alexandra hospital, also kind neighbors. [illegible]

In Memoriam (7)

To assist readers in preparing "In Memoriam" notices, the Edmonton Bulletin has prepared a booklet of some very appropriate verses. It is free upon request. Call, write or phone for a copy.

In loving memory of Harry Archuk, who passed away one year ago today, April 13, 1939.

"One year has passed since that sad day,
When the one I loved was called away.
God called him home, it was His will,
But in my heart he liveth still.
Some day I hope to meet him,
Some day, I know not when,
To clasp his hand in the better land,
Never to part again.
—Ever remembered by Dad.

In loving memory of Annie E. Martin, who passed away April 13, 1925.

"Deep in the heart lies a picture
Of a loved one laid to rest.
In memory's frame we shall keep it,
Because she was one of the best.

—W. B. Martin, and family.

Through The Mill

The guy was feeling pretty high, see, with the result that he was kinda careless with his chatter. In fact observers decided he was entirely too free in the remarks he made to the waitress in the joint.

So the guy was charged with a breach of a bylaw providing a fine for causing a disturbance by swearing. And on Saturday he appeared in court and pleaded guilty. The cadi wore a grim look, informed the accused that waitresses should be protected from the careless tongues of mugs like him and ordered him to pay a fine of $5 and $5.85 costs.

MERCURY HITS NEW PEAK FOR SEASON FRIDAY

Edmonton's temperature rocketed to a new high for the year Friday as the mercury hit 61 above at 3:30 p.m. A warm sun made the heavy blanket of snow covering the greater part of the city disappear rapidly. Devotees of such summer pastimes as golf, cricket, baseball, tennis, were looking forward eagerly to getting in their first games within the next two or three weeks as the forecast called for "fair and mild" weather. Low temperature Friday was 32 above.

With spring apparently here a few energetic citizens were seen removing storm windows from their homes early Saturday morning, while many a housewife informed "hubby" that he would spend his Saturday afternoon holiday performing chores around home as the annual spring-cleaning drive got underway in full force.

Temperatures throughout Alberta, including the near and far north, were rising rapidly Saturday. But in contrast to Edmonton's fine weather, residents of many districts in the north were forced to plod to work in a driving rainstorm. Rain was reported at Spirit River, Berwyn, Peace River, Fort Vermilion, Notikewin and Falher.

Report from Edmonton stockyards for week ending April 13:

Receipts:	Cattle	Calves	Hogs	Sheep
Week	1102	230	1220	78
Saturday		12	123	44

Trading on the cattle market was fairly active throughout the week. Receipts were moderate and the demand good until Friday, when packer buyers slowed up and were indifferent about purchasing. Order buyers coming to the rescue and cleaning up at fully steady prices. Practical tops on steers $6¾, with odd few selling at $7, heifers $6¼, cows $4½ to $4¾ with odd tops $5, bulls $3 to $4.65, fed calves bulk $7 to $7¼, odd top $7½.

Good to choice fed calves $6½ to $7¼, good to choice steers $6¼ to $6¾, fair to medium $5½ to $6, common to fair $4 to $5, good to choice heifers $5½ to $6½, fair to medium $4½ to $5¼, common to fair $4 to $4½, good to choice cows $4 to $4¾ with odd tops $5, common to medium $3 to $3¾, canners and cutters $2¾ down, bulls $3 to $4.65.

Stocker and feeder receipts limited. A few good steers selling at $5.50. Heifers $4.25 down.

The calf market was firm the forepart of the week. At the close grading somewhat closer and practical tops for good to choice vealers $8.00 to $8.50, others $7.50 down.

The hog market opened at $8.15 for bacons off truck. Declined Monday to a low for the week to $7.50, including Tuesday to $7.75 and Wednesday to $8.00 to continue steady to the close of the week's trading. Selects bringing a premium of 80c per cwt. and butchers discounted $1.00 per cwt.

Sheep and lambs—Actually insufficient sheep to test the market. Salesmen state that really good light lambs will bring up to $9.25; bulk ordinary run $8.50 to $9.00, yearlings $8.00 down; really good ones likely to bring up to $6.50; ewes $4.00 down.

WHEAT HOLDS FAIRLY STEADY

WINNIPEG, April 13—Scattered purchases held wheat futures prices fairly steady in today's dull and abbreviated Winnipeg grain exchange session. Closing quotations were ⅛ higher to unchanged, May at 90⅛, July 91⅜ and October 93.

Light offerings contributed to the firm tone as a few traders made spasmodic bids for supplies.

Wheat shipments from the Argentine this week of 4,288,000 bushels are the largest individual shipment for any week this season. The continent took 2,268,000, including 588,000 bushels for Holland alone. Brazil, etc., accounts for 1,065,000, making a total in the past 15 weeks of 11,514,000, which is at the rate of 40,000,000 bushels for the year. The balance remaining is now only 57,241,000 bushels compared to 206,463,000 at this time last year and 53,000,000 two years ago. Rye shipments from Argentine were 648,000 bushels, making a total for the season of 6,063,000, which is believed to include more than a million bushels for shipment to Europe via New York. 11,800 tons of Plate rye are supposed to have already been shipped to America and two full cargoes in addition to a 40,000-ton parcel are being loaded or about to be loaded.

TCA'S RECORD SAID EQUAL TO WORLD'S BEST

Record of Trans-Canada Air Lines is comparable with the best set up by any North American flying concern, according to P. G. Johnson, former vice-president of TCA and now president of Boeing Aircraft in Seattle.

Mr. Johnson, former president of United Airlines and a leading figure in American aviation, still keeps up his connection with TCA, in an advisory and consultative capacity.

Mr. J[illegible] with D. B. C[illegible]yer, Montreal, vice-president of TCA, and O. T. Larson, general superintendent of TCA, Winnipeg, is at the Macdonald. The party was to leave Saturday night for Vancouver.

S[illegible] April of last year [illegible] 98 per cent of all its schedules and 82 per cent of all its schedules were on time or no more than 30 minutes late. Approximately 22,000 passengers had been carried by TCA in the period from April to the end of the last calendar year, not counting the passengers from Vancouver to Seattle.

Walter Hale, postal superintendent here, greeted the trio of aviation leaders here, and the visitors also called on W. R. "Wop" May and other aviation figures here whom they know.

EDSON'S MAYOR, DANISH NATIVE, OFFERS RESIGN

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

EDSON, April 13—Stating that he is a native of Denmark, which is regarded as enemy territory since its occupation by Germany, and this makes his position as a [illegible] official embarrassing, Ma[illegible] Wilson has tendered his resignation.

The mayor, now serving his second two-year term as mayor, stated Friday night that he had sub[illegible] his resignation on Tuesday, the day Denmark submitted to military occupation. It will be considered at the next town council meeting Tuesday night.

Although both he and his wife are naturalized Canadian citizens, Mayor Wilson said he felt his position embarrassing. Asked if any remarks had been addressed to him to which he might have taken offence, he said there had been none.

He served for a number of years on the Edson [illegible] before being elected mayor by acclamation, and in the first Great War he was in the Canadian army. Both Mr. Wilson and his wife have relatives in Germany.

Mr. Wilson is proprietor of Wilson's feed store and is Imperial Oil agent here.

NATURAL ICE IS MADE PURE WITH NATURE PROCESS

The opinions of competent authorities on the purity of natural ice, made at various widely separated points in the United States and Canada, including Edmonton, have been summarized as follows:

"Nature has safeguarded the production of natural ice in a remarkable degree. As the temperature falls in the quiet winter nights, and the sheet of crystal creeps downward over the waters of lakes, rivers and ponds, selective forces draw together and fuse into the mass one substance—water, and push aside the impurities, the organic matter, the sand, the bacteria, into the black depths below. A fraction of these foreign substances is caught among the ice crystals, but so far as the bacteria are concerned, a new purifying factor is at work [illegible] the ice cake. In ice, or water, or any other substances in which there [illegible] a little to feed on, the bacteria, which are used to the rich foods of the human body, gradually perish. Every [illegible] the pond [illegible] it is growing purer.

"The sanitary safety of natural ice is due mainly to these two factors, freezing and storage, which effect freely and automatically a purification equivalent to that produced by water purification plants only after a considerable expenditure of money and under constant careful supervision."

Enclosed is the powdered dye you ordered to color your model airplanes
It mixes readily with water, until the de-sired tone is attain-
D'YA S'POSE THIS LITTLE ENVELOPE COULD BE TH' DYE?
JUST A MINUTE TILL I READ TH' REST OF IT!

ANOTHER LANGUOROUS SPRING EVENING, ALVIN! — BY JOVE, THIS BALMY DAY RECALLS AN EVENTFUL SPRINGTIME LONG AGO ON THE ISLE OF DROOP — HAVE I TOLD YOU ?

T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
A CHANCE TO WIN A KNIGHTHOOD, MAJOR!
I GO, YOUR MAJESTY!
MY QUEEN DISPATCHED ME TO MINISTER TO THE NATIVES STRICKEN MOTIONLESS BY A STRANGE SPRING FEVER!
WHAT STUPENDOUS SOMNOLENCE!
SNORE IN DROOP LANGUAGE!
PUTT-TT-TT! PUTT-TT!
I FOUND THE WHOLE ISLAND GRIPPED BY SLEEP! KING DOZE SNORED ON HIS THRONE!
EGAD! NOT A BAD STEW, EITHER!
SMACK!
FALLS INTO STUPOR DRINKING COCONUT MILK!
CLIMBING WHEN IT HIT HIM!
HE FELL ASLEEP COOKING!
AT WAR, SOUND ASLEEP!
NATIVES EVERYWHERE HAD BEEN SUDDENLY STRICKEN MOTIONLESS BY A SPRING FEVER — AS THOUGH PARALYZED IN THEIR TRACKS!
BOOM!
I HAD TO ACT AT ONCE! SO I BLEW UP A HUGE DAM IN THE HILLS, RELEASING MILLIONS OF GALLONS OF WATER!
THEN I STARTED A ROARING FIRE IN A RAVINE THROUGH WHICH THE WATER HAD TO FLOW!
SZZZ
SOON THE WHOLE ISLE WAS COVERED WITH HISSING STEAM — THE NATIVES SCURRIED ABOUT WIDE-AWAKE IN CLOUDS OF HOT VAPOR!
AND THAT, ALVIN, IS HOW THE EXPRESSION "ALL STEAMED UP" ORIGINATED — HAR-RUMPH!
